PREFACE

THE desire of an individual to trace his or her ancestry and to perpetuate, in print, the salient facts in the lives of these same ancestors, is commendable to the last degree. Hence this book of Records with the main authorities for the facts herein contained.

The 1907 Ogden Family Genealogy says "There is something peculiarly gratifying to the average American citizen to be able to trace his lineage to the primal days of colonial life, and especially to a worthy, virtuous and honored ancestor . . . the undying satisfaction in the knowledge that one is heir to strong and enduring ancestral character: in the fact of being able to point back to him who first came to the New World. . . . There is much fascination in the tracing back of ancestral lines, in spite of the many discouragements and the tediousness of the work."

The realization that one's ancestors were patriotic citizens, who fought for the independence of this Great American Republic, should be a strong incentive for the descendants to emulate such sterling deeds.

The mingling of the blood of the fine French Huguenot Families of Depew and See; of the Dutch Families of Cranckheyt and Siboutsen and Van Lent and Wiltsie and Van Boerum and Storm and Van Wert; of the English Families of Mitchell and Minot and Sherman and Prescott and Ogden and Root and Curtiss and Wellington and Winship and Wilder and Willard; with the touch of the Irish in the Johnston Family—has given us one of our grandest men in the person of the Honorable Chauncey Mitchell Depew.

The author lays no claim to originality in the arrangement of this book, but has endeavored to follow the accepted lines.

Special thanks are here rendered to Mr. Robert Brown Miller, of

The family of Du Puy was one of culture and refinement, and was also intellectually inclined, as we find them filling various professions.

Philip Du Puy and David Du Puy were brothers and served as officers under William, Prince of Orange, 1650-1702. Both of the Du Puy brothers were killed at the Battle of the Boyne, in Ireland, in 1690.

The Du Puy brothers, with many other Huguenots, fought bravely under the Duke de Shomberg and were considered heroes at the Battle of the Boyne.

Some of the soldiers or their descendants came to Pennsylvania with the Scotch-Irish.

In France, in 1686, Jean Mascarene, with a fellow-prisoner, Mr. Du Puy, of Caramen, was sentenced to the galleys for life. This was done because both professed the Protestant religion. Mr. Mascarene writes: "Our property was confiscated, with the fine of 1,000 crowns, to the King; next we were taken to the Parliament . . . of Toulouse, where a few days later we were separated. Mr. Du Puy remained in the conciergerie, and I was transferred to the Prisons of the Hôtel de Ville, from which I write you."

In 1802 Rabaut Du Puy became an eminent statesman and presided over the Constituent Assembly in France, and by his integrity and broad-minded statesmanship shed lustre upon his Huguenot antecedents.

Le Sieur Du Puy was among the noble Norman Barons who followed William the Conqueror, and took part in the Battle of Hastings in 1066. His name is on the Battle Abbey Roll, and his illustrious lineage is associated with the ivy-mantled towers bearing his name, "Chateau de la Hai-Dupuis." His coat-of-arms is painted opposite his name, "sur se grande tableau" (on the roll or list). See Goube's "History of Normandie."

In the records of this house are found besides warriors, many Du Puy's celebrated as Counselors, Ministers of State, Bishops and Cardinals, no less than four of them having been granted the Cardinal's Hat—Imbert Du Puy in 1327, Gérard Du Puy in 1375, Jacques Du Puy, born 1497, and one created Arch-bishop of Barri in 1557 was made Cardinal by Pope Julius II, and in consequence was Protector of Poland and President of the Order of Carmes and Malta; he died 26 April, 1583.

Gérard Du Puy, Cardinal, . . . was made a brother at S. Florent, afterwards at Marmontier. He was made a Cardinal in 1375; he died 14th of February, 1389.

Jacques du Puy, Cardinal, Arch-bishop of Bari, born at Nice, in Provence, 9th of February, 1497. He was made a Cardinal in 1551; he died at Rome on Monday 26th of April, 1563, in the 69th year of his age; his body was buried by Antoine Du Puy, his nephew. Cardinal Du Puy had written several works; he was buried at the Church of St. Marie de la Minerve.

Louis Du Puy, native of the town of Romans, in Dauphiné, in the 16th century, was the son of a celebrated physician named Guillaume du Puy, and he himself excelled in the same profession. He lived at Poitiers and translated from the Greek into the French several treatises in a scholarly manner, and was of the same reputation as his father.

Jean du Puy, Putéanus, a brother of the Order of Augustins, Professor of Théologie in the University of Toulouse; he died in 1623, in high honor and with a reputation of great piety.

Henri du Puy, or Erius Putéanus, born at Venloo, in the Duchy of Gueldre on the 4th of November, 1574; he studied at Dordrecht, Cologne and Louvain, and traveled to Italy, Rome, Padua and Milan; he died at the Château de Louvain on the 17th of September, 1646, in the 72nd year of his age; he married Magdelène-Catherine de la Tour at Milan in 1604. Henri Du Puy was classed among the most learned authors of his age. The city of Rome honored him and his issue in 1603 with citizenship and enrolled him and his posterity among the patricians. See "Abstract of Genealogy of the old house of the Du Puys, 1733," by Nicholas Balthazar. Henri Du Puy and his wife had four children: 1. Jean-Etienne, afterwards called Jésuite Du Puy; 2. Fauste Du Puy, mentioned in 1628; 3. Juste Du Puy, who became secretary to the Arch-bishop of Cosma; 4. Maxmilian Du Puy, who studied the same as his father.

François du Puy, Général of the Order des Chartreux; native of Saint Bonet en Forez . . . mentioned in 1503, was chosen by the Bishops of Valence and of Grenoble to be their official, and exercised this office with great probity and knowledge. Finally he renounced the world and received the habit of Chartreux from the Bishop of Grenoble. He composed a work on the Psalms, in imitation of Saint Thomas, printed in 1520; he died 17th September, 1521.

Clement Du Puy, sixth son of Geofroy Du Puy, was a celebrated lawyer of the Parliament of Paris, and acquired a great reputation by his knowledge, eloquence and his uprightness. He was consulted in all great affairs of the State. He died when 48 years old on the 22nd August, 1554. He had married Philippe Poncet; they had three children: 1. Clement Du Puy Jésuite; 2. Claude Du Puy; 3. Judith Du Puy.

Clement du Puy Jésuite, son of Clement du Puy the lawyer, born at Paris, had a great reputation in his times for his theology and for his charity. His merits as a scholar raised him to take part in the principal affairs of the day and throughout the Province of France; he died at Bordeaux in 1598.

Claude du Puy, son of Clement Du Puy and of Philippe Poncet, was Counsellor to the Parliament of Paris. He was brought up by his Mother, who taught him the teachings of Turnébe, Lambin and Aurat, or Dorat. He studied philosophy under the famous Cujas. He took a voyage into Italy where he met the great men of that country, such as Fulvius, Ursinus, Paul Manuce, . . . and many others. He was made Counsellor at Paris on the 7th February, 1576; he died the 1st of December, 1594, in his 49th year.

Christophe du Puy, eldest son of Claude Du Puy and Claude Sanguin, Counsellor to the Parliament, was made at Rome the Cardinal of Joyeuse. He gave great service to Monsieur de Thou in the first part of his History. He had great zeal and was often consulted by Pope Urban VIII. He died on the 28th of June, 1654, aged nearly 75 years.

Pierre du Puy, son of Claude du Puy, Counsellor to the Parliament. He was Counsellor to the King and garde of his bibliothèque. He was a scholar the same as his father. He had great judgment and was assiduous in his studies. His principal friends were the historian De Thou and the celebrated Nicolas Rigault. These formed a TRIUNE THREE. Pierre died at Paris on the 14th of December, 1651, aged 69 years. Nicolas Rigault, his friend, wrote his life which was printed in 1681 in London. Henri de Valois made his funeral oration. Pierre Du Puy was the author of a vast number of valuable books and histories. Jacques Du Puy, his brother, Prier de Saint Sauveur, aided him in the compilation of all his works. Jacques Du Puy was made Garde of the Library of the King, and he died on the 17th of November, 1656.

Germain Du Puy, Prêtre of the Oratoire, Curé of Châtres, . . . Chamoine of Saint Jacques de l'Hôpital, à Paris, where he lived many years. He was a writer and author; he died in 1713, more than a septuagenarian. He was the author of a number of works. "Le Grand Dictionnaire Moréri," Paris, pages 639 and 640.

Noble Etienne du Puy, writer, Lord of Sauvescure; married by contract Marie de Lupé and passed into the house of the Noble de la Motte, paroisse de Pouillon, the 4th August, 1644.

Courcelle's History gives the House of De Pouy coat-of-arms the same as the Du Puys, and says they are all of the same family, and that that is only another way of writing Du Puy.

The "Du Puys" in the Hall of the Crusaders, Versailles, France, 1096 A. D. In the Hall of the Crusaders, Room 5, there is a picture of Raymond Du Puy in the embrasure of the Middle Window. The coat-of-arms of Raymond Du Puy is on one of the pillars and "Huges Du Puy, 1096," is up near the ceiling in the left-hand corner, as one faces the windows and Raymond Du Puy's picture. This is a magnificent Hall, and is the Pride of France; and our hearts glowed and thrilled within us, as we stood and looked at these crests and pictures, and felt that after almost nine hundred years we, the 24th generation with the "Du Puy" blood in our veins, could rejoice to-day in the honor that they so well merited. (Mrs. Harper.)

In the "Chateaux de Versailles, or Palace of the Hall of the Crusaders," Room 21, we saw on the central arch, to the far left, a coat-of-arms marked "1096 Raymond de St. Gilles, Comte De Toulouse." This room has also, in upper left-hand corner over the window, a coat-of-arms of "Hugues Du Puy, Sgr. (Lord) de Pereins d'Apifer de Rochefort. 1096." In Room 17 there was a picture of "Raymond de Saint Gilles, Comte De Toulouse, 1105." This picture has a most noble face. The head wears a golden jewelled crown. The right hand is extended; the left grasps a powerful sword. A long, heavy blue-gray robe drapes his figure, while a broad red cross decorates his left shoulder. Also in Room 21, on the left hand of the central arch I found: A coat-of-arms, dated 1119, "Raymond Du Puy; 1er Gd. Maître de l'ordre, de St. Jean de Jérusalem, Premier or first Grand Master of St. John of Jerusalem." In Room 21, on the left hand of the center arch may be found: Cross, dated 1128: "Hugues de Payens, 1er Gd. Maître de l'Ordre du Temple." Premier or First Grand Master of the Order of the Temple. In Room 18, we saw a most beautiful painting by Monsieur Gibot of the "Defense de la Celesyrie par Raymond Du Puy, Grand Maître de l'ordre de Saint Jean de Jérusalem, 1130." The Defense of Celesyrie by Raymond Du Puy, Grand Master of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, 1130. Another painting just above this one shows Raymond Du Puy made prisoner by a body of Turks, 1130 (28th, 4th month, 1910.)

Du Puy is a very ancient French name, being one of the oldest in France. Puy signifies Mountain; du equals "of the." In French, "Puy (du)"; in Latin, "de Podio."

In the First Crusade Hugues Du Puy, one of the Dauphin's Knights and a Crusader, for the Conquest of the Holy Land, accompanied by his three sons, Adolph, Romain and Raymond, went with Godefroy de Bouillon to Palestine in the year 1096.

Raymond Du Puy, 1113, founded and was the First Grand Master of the Military Order of the Knights of St. John, of Jerusalem (1113). This military order was afterward styled the "Knights Templars," in 1121; also the "Knights of Malta," and acquired much wealth and wielded great power for several centuries. The Du Puy "coat-of-arms" was a device with a gold shield with a red lion rampant, showing his teeth, and with his tongue extended; also his claws. The tongue and claws were blue. The coat-of-arms of the Knights of Saint John of Jerusalem, the Crusaders, was a broad white cross of eight points on a red field. According to the custom of the age of chivalry, Raymond Du Puy, when he had become a Knight of Saint John of Jerusalem, quartered his own coat-of-arms with those of the Order of Saint John of Jerusalem. This latter coat-of-arms was deemed superior to that of the individual coat-of-arms. He therefore placed the arms of the order in the superior places of his shield, i.e., the First and Fourth Quarters, while he placed the arms of his father, Hugues Du Puy, in the Second and Third Quarters.

In 1033 the Emperor Conrad le Salique (and not Henri II, in 1103) went as head of an army to take possession of the Royalties of Arles and de Bourgogne, . . . One should find in the History of "Conrad le Salique," Emperor of Germany, 1033, what part Raphael de Podio, Grand Chamberlain of the Empire, took in the conquests by the Emperor of Arles and Bourgogne, in France. Thus we might find the history of Raphael de Podio antedating the year 1033. (Mrs. Harper.) 1st Generation.—Raphael Du Puy, in Latin de Podio, Grand Chamberlain of the Empire, went with him; he was made Gouverneur of these new estates; after a time the descendants of Raphael du Puy were possessed of several states in Dauphiné until the reign of Louis XI, who reunited all these souverainetés to the crown. The tomb of Raphaël du Puy was opened at Pereins in 1610 by order of Monsieur le Comte de la Roche, gouverneur of Romaines in Dauphiné. They found his body extended on a slab of marble, his sword on one side, his spurs on the other, and upon his head a helmet of lead, with an inscription thus translated into French by the historian, Marquis of Saint André-Montbrun: "Raphael de Podio, Général de la cavalerie Romaine, and Grand Chambellan de l'Empire Romain." In the house of Du Puy in Dauphiné, there may be seen a medal of gold of the same Raphaël, on the reverse side of which is written: "Raphaël de Podio, Grand Chambellan de l'Empire Romain, under l'Empereur Auguste, Christ régnant in the chair." Only Octavian and Strabon, and Henri II, had the title of "César Auguste."

1. Raphaël De Podio had a son:

2nd Generation.—Hugues Du Puy I, Lord of Pereins, of Apifer and of Rochefort. He went to the conquest of the Holy Land with his three children and his wife, Deurard de Poisieu, in 1096.

Guy Allard, page 1, "Histoire Genealogique de Famille de Du Puy-Montbrun a Grenoble, 1682." Grenoble is just south of Lyon, in France.

"The family of Du Puys had as a surname de Podeolo, de Psuato, de Puteolo, or de Podio. They are to be found at the siege of Nice by Admiral Soliman, of the Turks.

"Then when the City of Azare had been captured he (one of this Du Puy family) obtained the Civil Rights under the name of Wido of Pusato. This cannot be a mistake because when Peyrins and the other places of the Romans were dependencies of the ancient kingdom of Bourgoyne, . . . it was necessary that among those who took part in the Crusades there should be some of this country; I have arranged a part of the names of the gentlemen who were in this party . . . Guy de Chevrieres, Alleman . . . Rodolphe and Romain du Puy, sons of Hugues. Their surname was de Podio." Hugues I founded the Abbey of Aiguebelle, order of St. Bernard, diocèse of "St. Paul-trois-Chateaux." He was one of the gallant Generals of Godefroi de Bouillon, and was in many brave encounters, so that this prince gave him the souveraineté of the City of Acre, or Ptolémaïde, a city in Syria, on the coast.

"Hugues de Podio, this very (or most) excellent warrior (said Albert d'Aix) was given this city." He had four sons: 1. Alleman I; 2. Rodolphe, to whom Godefroi de Bouillon gave several lands in the Holy Land, and who was killed in combat in the valley of Ran.; 3. Romain, who was killed in the principalities that Godefroi had given him; 4. Raymond du Puy, Second Recteur or Grand Master of the order of Saint John of Jerusalem. See "The Great Historical Dictionary," by Lewis Moréri; printed in 1694 at London. Raymond du Puy died in 1160. Grand Master of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, and was of Dauphiny. He went to the Holy Land with Godfrey of Bullen, and after taking Jerusalem devoted himself to serve the poor, and the Pilgrims in the Hospital of St. John in that city. Having already manifested his valor in battle, Gerard, who was Rector of the Hospital, dying, Raymond du Puy was chosen to succeed him. He prescribed Laws to his Order, took in many Brethren, divided them into three Degrees; namely, Knights, Servants at Arms, and Chaplains. All his rules or constitutions were confirmed in 1123 by Pope Calixtus II, and in 1130 by Innocent II, who gave them for their standard a Cross Argent in a Field Gules (the Malta Cross). He equipped his troops and sent them to Baldwin, the second King of Jerusalem, assisted him at the siege of Ascalon and contributed very much to the taking of it. See "Le Grand Dictionaire Historique," by Moréri, published 1759, at Paris.

Raymond du Puy succeeded in 1188 Gérard, the one who founded this order. He was of the illustrious House of Du Puy, and had been made, in 1113, Maître de l'hôpital of the City of Jérusalem." Gérard had been called Gouverneur de l'hôpital. Raymond made a new constitution, confirmed by Calliste II in 1123, and by Innocent II in 1130, by which they had a right to carry in war a silver cross, to-day called the cross of "Malta," "in a Field gueulles." Raymond du Puy armed his troops and went to the help of Baudouin II, King of Jerusalem, and there they conquered the armies of the Infidels. In the year 1153 the King of Jerusalem was about to raise the siege of Ascalon, but the Grand Maître Du Puy persuaded him to remain before the city, and it surrendered in a few days. This conquest brought him a great deal of glory, which came to be heard by the Pope, Anastase IV, who accorded to his Order great privileges. Raimond was presented with a magnificent palace to live in. This made him have the jealousy of the other prelates in Jerusalem and the Holy Land. But the Order was maintained by the Sovereign Pontiff in these exemptions and in his privileges. This Grand-Maître died in 1160, and was succeeded by Auger de Balben. Raymond du Puy is the first to have taken and carried the title of "Grand Master of the Order," and he did not make use of it until after Roger, King of Sicily, had given it to him in several letters that he had written to Raymond. This was all copied by Mrs. Harper at the library in Paris, France. (See "Bosio & Baudouin hist de l'order of S. Jean de Jérusalem"; also, M. de Valbonnay's Recherches concernant Raimond Du Puy premier president de la chambre des Comptes de Dauphiné in Volume VI, part I.") Guy Allard's "Histoire Genealogique de Famillie de Du Puy-Montbrun à Grenoble, 1682," page 15.

3rd Generation.—1st child—Alleman Du Puy I, Knight, Lord of Pereins, of Apifer and of Rochefort, at Dauphine during the time that his father, mother and brothers took the voyage to the Holy Land. As his inclinations did not seem to take him with them, he had the pleasure of receiving his parents again, who returned, happily. Alleman remained at home and cared for his home and his parents, showing by his conduct that he wished to make happy their declining years. He was not lacking in courage, either, as is demonstrated on several occasions. He had learned that William, Count de Forcalquier, of Ambrun, and of Gap, and Marquis of Provence had attacked Giraud and Giraudet Ademars, Lords of Monteil and of Grignan, who rendered homage for the land of Monteil, and that this prince, in the year 1115, had come himself almost to the gates of Monteil, that are called Montielmart, a city of Dauphiné, in order to compel these brothers to acknowledge him. He knew also that the Count de Valentinois had given troops to the brothers, so he joined them and encouraged them with much help in several different encounters, until his brothers acknowledged that the defeat of the Count de Forcalquier was a part of the work of Alleman du Puy I. They acknowledged their indebtedness still further by giving to him in marriage their sister Veronique Ademar. Mrs. Lillie Harper has seen a manuscript or deed dated "6 of the Kale of May, 1143," in favor of this Alleman, by William-Hugues Ademar, Lord of Monteil, of the House of Montbrun Veronique, wife of Alleman was a daughter of Giraud Ademar, Lord of Monteil, de la Garde and of Grignan, and niece of Aymar, Archbishop of du Puy, so celebrated in the wars of the Holy Land. Lambert and Giraudonnet Ademar were his brothers. They died at the siege of Jerusalem and were great friends of Raimond Du Puy, Grand Master of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

4th Generation.—Hugues Du Puy II, Knight, Lord of Pereins, Rochefort, Apifer, and Montbrun; he took the Cross and went to the Crusades in 1140 with Amé III, Count of Savoye and acquitted himself with much glory; he married Floride Moiran, daughter of Berlion de Moiran.

5th Generation.—1st child—Alleman du Puy II, Knight, Lord of Pereins, Rochefort, Apifer and Montbrun, carrying the name of Montbrun, and rendering homage in 1229 to Aimar de Poitiers, Count of Valentinois and of Diois. In an act of acquisition (dated 23 October 1267), he himself says "he is son of Hugues du Puy and grand-son of Alleman du Puy; and it is also written in the act that Guillaume is son of Alleman I." See "History of the house of Poitiers," by André Du Chesne. Alleman Du Puy II married Alix, Princess Dauphiné. They had: 1. Alleman Du Puy III. 2. Ainier, who went on a journey to Tunis, where the Africans were defeated by the French. (See Joinville.) (In the year 1270.)

He married Béatrix Artaud, daughter of Pierre-Ysoard Artaud, Lord of Glandage and of his wife, Alix de Tournon. They had three sons, also other children: 1.

Alleman Du Puy IV; 2. Bastet Du Puy, founder of the Branch of Lords of Montbrun; 3. Imbert (or Humbert) Du Puy, who became a Cardinal and Archbishop of Boulogne. All the conclave wanted to make him the Pope, but Philippe le Bel (the King) was not willing, because he thought it against the interests of the Empereur.

7th Generation.—1st child—Alleman du Puy IV, Knight, Lord of Pereins, Rochefort, Apifer, Ansenix and Conisrieu. He was with the Count of Valentinois under King Phillippe V who marched against the people of Flamans in 1316. He was routed in 1329 on the journey to Cassel. Claude Du Puy; 4. Jean Du Puy, alive 1431; 5. Aimar Du Puy; 6. Caterine, who married the Noble Antoine de Montbrun, du mandement de Val, etc.

11th Generation.—1st child—Ainier, or Eynier Du Puy, officer général of the armies, Knight, Lord of Pereins, Rochefort, Hauteville, la Roche,

THE DEPEW LINE

1. Francois¹ Du Puy, of the family of Du Puy in France, came from Calais, France, to New York; he was living in 1702. He married, first, in the Dutch Church, New Amsterdam; banns 26 August, 1661; wedded 26 September, 1661, to Geertje Williams, daughter of William Jacobs Van Boerum; she had eight children. Francois married, second, about 1687 to 1689, to Annie Elsten; she had one child.

The nine children of Francois¹ Depew were:

- 2 + 1. William² eldest son; born about 1663 in Bushwick, Long Island, New York; married, banns 10 August, 1688, to "Lysbeth Weyt" or White.

- 10 9. Mary,² bapt. New York Dutch Church, 3 March, 1689; one sponsor, Albertus Ringo; daughter of Francois Puy and Annie Elsten.

Francois¹ De Pew resided, 14 March, 1661, at "Boswyck," now Bushwick, Brooklyn, New York. In 1677 he was a member of the Dutch Church, Flatbush, Long Island, New York, says Teunis G. Bergen in his 1881 King's County, New York, Settlers. He had a grant of 80-odd acres on Staten Island, New York, 21 December, 1680, on the south side of Fresh Kill; in 1687 he went to Rockland County, New York; in 1702 he went to Westchester County, New York, where he died.

Mr. Frank J. Conkling, of Brooklyn, New York, in the 1901 New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, says: "The study of this family finds the same eccentricities, or variations in nomenclature, as are found in many of the family names of our early settlers. The name is found as Depuis, De Pu, De Py, D'Puw, de Pue, De Puuw, De Puw, D'Puy, Puuw, Du Pre, Du Puy, Du Puis, Dupue, De Puy, etc. We discover, whichever way the scribes in Colonial times, or decision of the owner, had adorned the spelling of the name, that in tracing back to the fountain-head or source in this country, the line will, if brought within the bounds of Colonial New York, lead to either one of two sturdy Huguenots, who, thinking to improve life's fortunes and to exercise religious freedom, packed their belongings and set sail under the flag of Holland to the New Dutch Colony so recently established in the New World, and named New Amsterdam."

The two emigrants were Nicholas Dupuis from Artois, in the Department of Calais, a division of France then bordering on the Netherlands, and Francois Dupuis, a young man from Calais. That they were related seems evident from the fact that Francois named a son Nicholas, evidently for the senior Nicholas, who with his wife stood as god-parents to the infant 17 October, 1686, and, again, both men had land on the Staten Island, and both men went up the Hudson River to Rockland County, New York. Nicholas and Francois were Huguenots. Francois, though younger than Nicholas, was the first to reach the shores of America. His marriage banns, translated, read: "Francoys Dupuis, a young man of Cales, France, and Geertje Willems, young daughter of Amsterdam." This announcement of his coming marriage was a requirement of the times, and is valuable from the fact that the record is the only one found giving the place of his birth. Francois was married one month later in the Dutch Church, "Breucklen," New York, being the fifth marriage now on record, and reads: "26 September 1661 Francois du Puis and Geertie Willems, with certificate from Manhattans"—now New York City; see the 1897 Holland Society Year Book.

Administration on the estate of John Depew, of Dutchess County, New York, a soldier in Cortland's Regiment, was granted 11 August, 1791, to Benjamin Pelton and Philip Pelton and John Trattafas, all of Dutchess County; see file box 54, Surrogate's Office, Poughkeepsie, New York. The Registry of Deeds, at Poughkeepsie, New York, liber 6, page 314, of Mortgages, show that Benjamin Pelton, of Frederickstown, Dutchess County, New York, 10 October, 1793, indentured for one hundred and eleven pounds, three shillings, and five pence, to Zephaniah Platt and John Bailey, both of "poughkeepsie," five hundred acres of land in Phillipstown; bounds, one chain and forty links in course North, fifty-five degrees and thirty minutes by the road that leads from Shenadore to Peekskill Hollow; Robinson's long lot; "pettit" meadow; Samuel Yeoman's field. Liber 7, page 211, Mortgages, Benjamin Pelton, of Frederickstown, Dutchess County, New York, 10 October, 1793, indentured for one hundred and eleven pounds, three shillings, and five pence, to Zephaniah Platt and John Bailey, both of "poughkeepsie town," five hundred acres of land in Phillipstown on the road that leads from Shenadore to "peekskill" Hollow.

The above is the land, one thousand acres, that was owned by John³ De Pew and his son, Henry⁴ De Pew, and his grandson, Abraham⁵ De Pew. Abraham⁵ De Pew had an orchard and meadow field (kept for fodder) back of Haverstraw, New York, across the Hudson.

SEVENTH GENERATION

507. Honorable Chauncey Mitchell⁷ Depew (Isaac,⁶ Abraham,⁵ Henry,⁴ John,³ Jan,² François¹), born 23 April, 1834, in Peekskill, New York; married, first, 9 November, 1871, in New York City, to Elise Ann Hegeman, born 16 November, 1848; died New York City, 7 May, 1893; daughter of William and Eliza Johnston (Niven) Hegeman; she had one child; married, second, in Nice, France, 28 December, 1901, May Palmer, born New York City, 3 May, 1866; daughter of Henry and Alice (Hermon) Palmer.

He has one child by his first wife:

1. Chauncey Mitchell,^s born New York City, 7 July, 1879; single in 1918; graduated from Columbia University, New York, in 1901.

The Honorable Chauncey Mitchell Depew, statesman, counsellor, orator, and man of the world, whose name is known everywhere, was born in Peekskill, Westchester County, New York, on April 23, 1834, of Huguenot and New England parentage. His father, Isaac Depew, a prominent citizen and merchant, was a lineal descendant of Francois Du Puy, a Huguenot, who fled from France during the religious persecutions of the seventeenth century. The name Du Puy or De Puy is an ancient one, having been prominent as early as the eleventh century. Raphael Du Puy was an officer of rank in 1030 under Conrad II, of the Holy Roman Empire, and Hugues Du Puy, his son, distinguished himself in the Crusades. The family was early in France, and its history is marked down the centuries by many noted names and titles both in Church and State. In the religious upheaval that culminated in the Massacre of St. Bartholomew, part of the family became identified with the Genevan or Calvinistic party, which, under the name of Huguenot, became so powerful under Henry IV that it was granted freedom of worship in 1598 by the Edict of Nantes.

After the capture of La Rochelle, the Huguenot headquarters, by Richelieu in 1628, many of the faith, despairing of attaining religious peace at home, migrated to England and the Low Countries, and many of them eventually to the New World, and some of them settling in New Rochelle, in this country. Among those who thus left the land of their fathers were two brothers, Nicholas and Francois Du Puy, who escaped from Paris, tradition says, in 1651, on hearing of their threatened arrest, and went into the Netherlands. Some ten years later Francois, the younger, sailed for New Amsterdam in the New World, where he arrived three or four years before its occupation by the English. Francois, who was followed by his brother Nicholas a year later, appears first in Breuckelen (Brooklyn), where he was married, September 26, 1661, to Gerrtje Willems, daughter of Willem Jacobs Van Boerum. He was living at this time in Bushwick, east of Brooklyn, but in 1677 is recorded a member of the Dutch Church at Flatbush. In 1687 he is at Haverstraw, now in Rockland County, New York; in 1702 he crossed the Hudson River and came into Westchester County, New York, and settled on a tract originally purchased from the Indians in 1685, under a license from Governor Dongan. Though this tract fell eventually within the political limits of the Manor of Cortland, Westchester County, New York, erected in 1697, its soil was held in fee by its proprietors, from one of whom it was named Ryke's Patent, Ryke being the Dutch abbreviation of Richard. Part of this Patent, on which the village of Peekskill, New York, was founded in 1764, belonged to the ancestors of Chauncey M. Depew.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW
GRADUATE OF YALE UNIVERSITY IN 1856

The surname Du Puy has undergone many changes in its passage through Dutch into English, and we find it recorded as Dupuis, Dupui, Dupuy, Depee, Depuy, De Pue, Depu, Depew, etc. John, a grand-son of the original Francois, was born 24 October, 1705; Abraham Depew, grand-son of this John, was born 10 October, 1762, and married Catherine, daughter of Captain James Cronkite, and became the great-grand-father of Chauncey Mitchell Depew. Abraham Depew enlisted in 1777 in the Third Regiment of the Manor of Cortland, commanded by Colonel Pierre Van Cortland, and subsequently, on the election of Colonel Van Cortland as Lieutenant-Governor of New York State, by Colonel Drake, and served until his discharge as a corporal in 1780, at the close of the war. Abraham Depew, Captain James Cronkite and the Reverend Josiah Sherman, Captain and Chaplain of the Seventh Connecticut Line were ancestors who served in the Army under Washington during the Revolutionary War.

Mr. Depew's New England affiliations are derived from his mother, who was born Martha Minot Mitchell, daughter of Chauncey Root and Anna MacArthur (Johnston) Mitchell.

Chauncey Root Mitchell, a distinguished lawyer of Westchester County, New York, and afterwards of Delaware County, New York, where he was until his death the partner of the famous lawyer and statesman, General Erastus Root, was noted for ability as an advocate and orator. Anna MacArthur Johnston was the daughter of Judge Robert Johnston of Putnam County, New York, for many years State Senator and Judge.

The Judge was a large landed proprietor, owning Lake Mahopac in Putnam County and much of the country around it. Mrs. Depew's grand-father was the Reverend Justus Mitchell, a lineal descendant of Major Matthew Mitchell, who came to New England in 1633 from Halifax, Yorkshire, England. Reverend Justus Mitchell married Martha Sherman, a daughter of Reverend Josiah Sherman and his wife Martha Minot, and a niece of the Honorable Roger Sherman, Signer of the Declaration of Independence. Martha Sherman was fifth in descent from Captain John Sherman, who was born in Dedham, County Essex, England, in 1615, and who married Martha Palmer, daughter of William and Ann Palmer.

Mr. Depew's New England ancestry thus includes, besides the Mitchells and the Shermans, the blood of the Palmers, Winships, Wellingtons, Minots, and Johnstons, all notable families in the New World. He is descended also from a sister of the Reverend Henry Dunster, the first President of Harvard College. His mother, from whom he derived many of the characteristics that have conduced to his success, was of marked personal beauty, varied accomplishment, and social prominence. She died in 1885.

Peekskill, New York, Mr. Depew's natal place, named after Jan Peek, an early Dutch navigator, has now a population of more than fifteen thousand. The Depew homestead, a picturesque building with a portico supported by Ionic columns, is still in possession of the family, and Mr. Depew, although his residence is in New York City, delights to call this house and Peekskill his home. The country around it is replete with historic and patriotic associations, especially those connected with the Arnold and André episode, treated so masterfully in one of his orations (see the printed 1896 Orations and After-Dinner Speeches of Chauncey M. Depew, page 231), and doubtless had its influence in forming his character in youth.

The favorable situation of Peekskill on the east bank of the Hudson made it the market for the country back of it as far as the Connecticut State line, and the shipping-point of its produce to New York, from which it is distant about forty miles. The transportation of freight, wholly by the river, was controlled, almost entirely, by Isaac Depew and his brother, both energetic farmers and merchants. There were no railroads in those days, but the New York and Albany steamboats, of rival lines, were always a subject of interest, attracting crowds to the bank as they passed up or down the river, often racing. Each boat had its partisans, and Vanderbilt and Drew, the principal owners, were popular heroes with the youth of the village, among whom young Depew was by no means backward. These boats and his father's business led him early to take an interest in the transportation problem, to which in later years he devoted so much time and successful study.

The boy's first instruction was received from his mother, a lady of rare education and culture. He was next put in charge of Mrs. Westbrook, the wife of an able and well-informed clergyman, who had a small school for children under ten. Through the training thus received the apt pupil, who was also an omnivorous reader, became informed beyond his years on the events and political issues of the past and present, and was often able to confound the village oracles who expounded their views at the post-office, grocery, bank or drug store. Regarded as a prodigy, he became a leader among his fellows, who looked up to him as one who gave unmistakable promise of future brilliancy and usefulness.

The period between his tenth and eighteenth years was passed at the Peekskill Academy, an old-fashioned institution designed primarily to prepare boys for a business career, and its students were expected to go out early into the world of work. Isaac Depew had placed his son there in the hope that he would join him in his business, but the youth, influenced probably by his mother and the instructions of Dr. Westbrook, had visions of a more ambitious career. Fortunately these visions were aided by the advice of Judge Thomas Nelson, son of the Honorable William Nelson, of Peekskill, who remarked to the elder Depew one evening: "You ought to send Chauncey to college." This was the entering wedge, and the father, after a season of deliberation, concluded to take the Judge's advice, though when Yale College was suggested, he interposed objections. An old-fashioned business man and a Jackson Democrat, he had the distrust of Yankees characteristic of a "Hudson River Dutchman," and a reader of Irving and Cooper. But the wishes of his wife, whose father and grandfather were of Yale, and whose descent from New England progenitors naturally turned her preferences in that direction, finally prevailed, and Chauncey was sent to Yale.

He entered college in 1852, and was graduated in 1856, in a class that became known as the "Famous Class of 1856," partly on account of the general good standing of its members in the various professions, and especially because it had two representatives on the Bench of the United States Supreme Court at Washington, viz., Henry Billings Brown and David Josiah Brewer. In this class, consisting of some one hundred and twenty-five men, Depew soon made his mark, winning his way to the front largely through personal attractions, but particularly by his gift as a speaker, which made him the orator of the class. He seldom lost an opportunity to enter into debate and always acquitted himself creditably. His classmates still remember with pride his effort in the debate between the two societies, Linonia and Brothers of Unity, in which he appeared as the champion of the former with Wayne MacVeagh of the Class of 1853.

Depew's personal appearance at this period was striking. He was taller than many of his classmates and had sharp, well-chiselled features marked by the prominent aquiline nose still characteristic of him. His abundant yellow hair was worn long, in the fashion of the time, nearly reaching his shoulders. He always dressed well, exhibiting a penchant for elaborately tied cravats decorated with the pin of his secret society.

Depew came to College a Democrat. Like his father and other members of the family, he belonged to the conservative wing of the party willing to leave the slavery question in abeyance, nicknamed in New York State "Old Hunkers" to distinguish them from the "Barnburners," or "Free Soil" Democrats, who were opposed to any further extension of slavery into the Territories. There were three Presidential candidates in the field in Depew's first year in College, in 1852: Franklin Pierce, the nominee of the National Democratic Party, General Winfield Scott of the Whig Party, and John P. Hale of the Free Soil Democrats. In the frequent debates on the campus, in which the old topics of Tariff, Internal Improvements, and National Bank had given place to the more burning questions of the day, the Fugitive Slave Law, Personal Liberty Bills, and the extension of Slavery, Depew at first upheld the traditional politics of his family, but with the trend of events his principles gradually underwent a change. In 1853 the famous Kansas-Nebraska Bill caused the disintegration of the old parties and a formation on new lines in relation to the slavery question. The eloquent discussions of the many phases of these questions by the Reverend Dr. Bacon from the pulpit of the Centre Church, and of Wendell Phillips, George William Curtis, William Lloyd Garrison, and other famous anti-slavery orators from public platforms in New Haven, aroused in Depew a consciousness that he was on the wrong side of the great questions of the day and finally caused him to repudiate the principles in which he had been educated and to cast his lot with the "Anti-Nebraska Men." When early in 1856 the Anti-Nebraska Men adopted the name Republican Party, later characterized by Democrats with a contemptuous addition as "Black Republican," Depew transferred his allegiance to the new party; and when, in June, John Charles Fremont, of California, whose explorations in the West had won him the title of the "Path-finder," was made the Republican standard bearer, Depew enlisted and became an enthusiastic supporter.

Depew had scarcely received his degree when he threw himself heart and soul in the canvass in support of Fremont and Dayton, making speeches in their behalf and beginning his political career which made so prominent a figure in every succeeding Presidential campaign. As he himself has recorded, his defection from parental principles nearly broke his father's heart and caused him to shed tears of mortification when his son first appeared on a Republican platform in his native village.

After leaving Yale College Depew entered the law office of the Honorable William Nelson as a student, in 1858 was admitted to the Bar, and in the following year began in Peekskill the practice of his profession, in which he soon demonstrated his ability. But his early interest in politics did not desert him and seemed for a time to interfere seriously with his business. In 1858 he was elected a delegate to the Republican State Convention, and has been elected to every State Convention, with but few exceptions, since; he was one of the four Delegates-at-Large from this State (New York) to the Republican National Conventions of 1888, 1892, 1896, 1900, 1904, and a delegate in 1908, 1912, and 1916.

In 1860 he took the stump for Lincoln and Hamlin, making many speeches in many sections of the country. He was then only twenty-six years old, but his skill as an orator and his careful analysis of the great questions at issue showed that his ability and judgment were in advance of his years. In 1861 he was elected a member of the New York State Assembly from the Third Westchester District, in which the Democrats had usually had a good working majority, a high compliment to his personal popularity. In this position he exhibited such intelligence, industry, and tact, and watched so carefully over the interests of his constituents that he was re-elected in 1862; at the commencement of the Legislative Session of 1863 he was named in caucus as his party's candidate for speaker. That year the New York Assembly was evenly divided politically: by Mr. Depew withdrawing as a candidate, his party friends voted for the successful candidate, who classified himself as an "Independent Democrat." Depew acted as speaker pro tem during part of the session, was chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, as such leader of the majority on the floor, and received other honors unusual for one so young in years and experience.

In 1863 Mr. Depew was put on the Republican State (New York) ticket as candidate for Secretary of State. In the previous election the Democrats had won a signal victory under their standard bearer, Horatio Seymour, one of the purest and ablest statesmen New York has produced, and in order to insure success the Republicans were obliged not only to exercise care in the selection of candidates but also to put forth their most earnest efforts to overcome the prestige of Governor Seymour's popularity. But Mr. Depew was equal to the occasion. He won a notable victory, with a majority of thirty thousand. He declined a renomination for this office owing to business interests.

When Andrew Johnson succeeded to the Presidency on the death of President Abraham Lincoln, one of his earliest acts was to reward Mr. Depew for his services to the party. He made out his commission as Collector of the Port of New York, then one of the most lucrative gifts within the President's bestowal; but before he had sent it to the Senate for confirmation he became incensed against Edwin D. Morgan, then United States Senator from New York, because he refused to vote to sustain his veto of the Civil Rights Bill, and angrily tore up the document. Later in President Johnson's administration, William H. Seward, then Secretary of State, secured the appointment of Mr. Depew as United States Minister to Japan, and it was confirmed by the Senate, but after holding the matter under advisement for a month, the position was declined for family reasons.

While thus apparently turning his back on a career that offered the most flattering prospects, Mr. Depew felt it his duty to withdraw from politics and to devote himself assiduously to his chosen profession, the law. This he was enabled to do with a greater promise of success than in his earlier days, for the experience won in his political career brought with it a confidence in himself and his resources and a matured knowledge of men and of affairs that made him the equal of any among his contemporaries, even of his superiors in years. About this time he attracted the attention of Cornelius Vanderbilt, whose success in steamboat navigation had won him the popular sobriquet of "Commodore," and who had already laid the foundation of the great railway system afterwards known as the "Vanderbilt System." Mr. Depew, who had won the friendship of the Commodore's son, William H. Vanderbilt, was surprised one day by an offer of a position as Attorney in the railway service.

HON. CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW
SECRETARY OF STATE OF NEW YORK, 1863

"Politics don't pay, Chauncey," said the Commodore. "The business of the future in this country is railroading." This settled the question of Mr. Depew's future and he at once accepted the offer and applied himself to the study of railroad transportation, in which he won so signal a success. In 1866 he became the attorney for the New York and Harlem Railroad Company, and in 1869, when this road was consolidated with the New York Central Railroad with Commodore Vanderbilt at its head, Mr. Depew was chosen attorney for the new corporation and later became a member of its Board of Directors. As the Vanderbilt system expanded Mr. Depew's interests and duties increased in a corresponding degree, and in 1875 he was appointed General Counsel for the entire system and elected a Director in each road of the roads of which it was composed.

In 1872, at the earnest solicitation of Horace Greeley, Mr. Depew permitted the use of his name as a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor on the Liberal Republican or Greeley ticket, and shared, as he had probably expected, in the defeat of that party. He acted with the Republican Party the next year, and has acted with that party every year since.

Two years later he was chosen by the Legislature as a Regent of the State University, and also as one of the Commissioners to build the State Capitol at Albany.

In 1881, when the famous quarrel with President James A. Garfield was followed by the resignation from the United States Senate of Roscoe Conkling and Thomas Collier Platt, Mr. Depew was a favorite candidate for the succession for the unexpired term of Mr. Platt, and would probably have won if the assassination of President Garfield had not thrilled the nation with horror and brought about a termination of the long struggle. In withdrawing his name, Mr. Depew issued a statement urging that selections be made without further conflict and in harmony, that "Neither the State nor the party can afford to have New York unrepresented in the National Councils. A great crime has plunged the Nation into sorrow, and in the midst of the prayers and the tears of the whole people, supplicating for the recovery and weeping over the wound of the President, this partisan strife should cease."

Five years later, when his party controlled a majority of the State Legislature, he was the party choice for the United States Senatorship. Many business and professional duties obliged him to decline the honor.

The resignation of William H. Vanderbilt from the presidency of the New York Central had led meanwhile to a reorganization of the company, in which Mr. James H. Rutter was made president and Mr. Depew was made second vice-president; in 1885, on the death of President James H. Rutter, Mr. Depew was elevated to the presidency, which latter office he held for thirteen years, acting also as president over most of the companies allied to the Vanderbilt system; he was also a director in twenty-eight additional lines. On his resignation of the presidency in 1898, he was made chairman of the Board of Directors of the Vanderbilt system of railroads, a position he still holds.

In 1888, when Mr. Depew was a Delegate-at-Large from this State (New York) to the Republican National Convention, he received the seventy votes from the State of New York for the Presidency. On subsequent ballots the vote was increased to ninety-nine. It was at his urgent request that his name was withdrawn, and his friends supported Benjamin Harrison, who was finally nominated. After election Mr. Harrison tendered to Mr. Depew any place in his Cabinet except as Secretary of State, which had been promised to Mr. James G. Blaine, but Mr. Depew felt obliged to decline.

In 1892, at the Republican National Convention, held at Minneapolis, when most of the national leaders of the party were opposed to the renomination of President Benjamin Harrison, Mr. Depew led President Harrison's forces and made many speeches in that city, preceding the sessions of the Convention, to create an opinion favorable to Harrison's renomination, and in the Convention he spoke most eloquently advocating the renomination. President Benjamin Harrison attributed his success in the Convention in a great part to Mr. Depew.

To show his appreciation the President invited Mr. Depew to accept the place in his Cabinet of Secretary of State, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. James G. Blaine.

Again Mr. Depew for business reasons was obliged to decline this new and great honor.

In addition to his railway and political engagements, exacting enough to occupy the entire time of a less active man, Mr. Depew had numerous social and semi-social duties.

He is a director of many financial, fiduciary, and other corporations and trusts, and a member of societies too numerous to mention here. Among the many may be named the following: In New York, the Huguenot Society, the Society of the Cincinnati, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Union League, the Metropolitan Club, the Century Club, the Holland Society, the New England Society, the Colonial Wars Society, Kane Lodge, Masons, and 33rd degree in the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, the St. Nicholas Society, the American Bar Association, the New York Bar Association, the Westchester County Bar Association, the Republican Club, the Lotos Club, the Players' Club, the Transportation Club, the University Club, the Phi Beta Kappa Club, the Psi Upsilon Club, Lafayette Post, the New York Chamber of Commerce, the New York Yacht Club, the Automobile Club of America, the Tuxedo Club. He was for many years in succession elected President of the Yale Alumni Association, declining a re-election after a decade of service, and he was for twelve years a member of the Yale Corporation; for seven successive years, too, he was President of the Union League Club, a longer term than was ever held by any other, and on declining further election he was made an honorary life member. Mr. Depew is also member of the Yale Chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa, of the Psi Upsilon Fraternity, and of the Senior Society of Skull and Bones, one of the most exclusive of those at Yale.

In Washington, D. C., he is a member of the Metropolitan Club, the Chevy Chase Club, the Country Club, the Alibi Club, and the University Club.

Mr. Depew was Adjutant of the 18th regiment of the New York

National Guard. This regiment was mustered into the United States service and served during the Gettysburg campaign. He was afterwards promoted to be Colonel and Judge Advocate of the fifth division of the New York National Guard. He was under the law retired at the age of sixty-four and placed upon the retired list.

In 1899 Mr. Depew was elected a United States Senator representing the State of New York, being the unanimous choice of the Republican majority in the Legislature; in 1905 he was re-elected. In all he served in the Senate twelve years; at the end of the last term his party friends in the Legislature of 1912 voted unanimously in favor of giving him a third term, but it so happened that his party did not have the necessary majority in the Legislature of that year—though the intention was good, the votes were lacking, and the honor went to another, of opposite political faith. Mr. Depew as a candidate for United States Senator has received the ballots of the members of his party in the State Legislature more often than any other citizen of the United States—namely, sixty ballots, one each day for sixty days in 1881, and sixty-four during forty-five days in 1911.

Though burdened with many responsibilities Mr. Depew always finds time for rest and recreation. This is not only because he displays a phenomenal capacity for the disposal of work, but because he so systematizes his labors that one occupation is never permitted to interfere with another. His rest and recreation are found rather in change of occupation than in the repose which most men seek after their labors, and he returns from reading and study to weightier cares refreshed and reinvigorated.

Mr. Depew's chief recreation is public speaking. "Speech-making is a tonic to me," he has said, "and not an occupation of wear and tear. It gets the mind into another channel and answers the same purpose as the Greek and Latin translation of Mr. Gladstone; as horse-driving did to Commodore Vanderbilt, and as cards do to many business men. The difference between my recreation and that of other business men is that mine is all in public." What would be a subject of anxiety and of long and hard labor to most men is but a necessary diversion to him. His more important orations and addresses are dictated to a stenographer and typewritten, though his memory is so tenacious that he never uses notes in delivery; but many of his after-dinner speeches are extemporaneous, born of the time and the occasion, for he has the rare talent of thinking while on his feet and is never at a loss for a word or a simile. At the Republican National Convention in Chicago, 1916, Mr. Depew gave brilliant evidence of his wonderful ability and felicity in addressing an enormous audience at a moment's notice. Called suddenly to the platform, he delivered one of the best of his many excellent speeches. Sometimes Mr. Depew has made addresses that were mirth-provoking from beginning to end; but oftener he has veiled some serious intent behind the mask of raillery; and as often, again, has he spoken on questions whose gravity has forced his laughter-loving side into complete retirement. Mr. Depew has often been called one of the best after-dinner speakers, but such characterization, though eminently true, does him an injustice, for that is but one phase of his many-sided eloquence. The author of "Off Hand Sketches of Prominent New Yorkers," speaking of Mr. Depew, says, "The characteristic of Mr. Depew's speaking is that it does not depend upon verbal jokes nor funny stories for its success. It is the true humor which grows naturally out of the subject, and is based upon a common substratum of common sense."

No man in the United States, perhaps in all the world, has attended so many public dinners as Mr. Depew, that is, where speeches were made. In his time he has been at some 8,000 banquets, as he estimates. Though eighty-three years of age, he is to-day as young and alert as a man of half his age; in fact more so than many of them. He has formulated his own rules for right living and has written them down. He says: "I have seen a flow of champagne suggestive of Niagara, but I have never been submerged. One rule I have followed for forty years—I pick out of each bill of fare what I would have eaten if I had stayed at home. At a very large dinner, I do not take the oysters. I merely touch the soup. I skip the fish. I skip all dishes upon which the chef has exhausted his art. I eat the roast if it is lamb or a fowl, and skip it if it is beef. If there is terrapin, I take that, because it is very digestible, and I take the game. I do not smoke, and I never drink anything but champagne, and a very little of that. The next day everything with me—head and vitality—is as usual.

"There never was a man yet, unless he became dependent upon alcohol, whom drink did not dull or deaden. Most of the great speakers that I have known never touch anything at dinner. They have told me that their mental processes would not work until at least five hours after a meal, unless the digestive processes were over. I never was troubled that way.

"A curious thing about public men going to a dinner to deliver an address is the way in which many of them will lose a national reputation. I have seen half a dozen of the finest reputations in the country go to pieces at a banquet in New York because the man spoke too long and did not relieve his speech, because he thought it beneath his dignity to give a display of humor. I remember two dinners in New York where the principal speakers were men of national reputation, and there were six others to come after them, also of national reputation. They emptied the hall, and when they closed there were very few present except the officers and the band. The other speakers had also fled.

"I have never experimented with strange food. My health and longevity are due more than anything else to the fact that I have always been very careful what got inside of me."

At dinners in the White House many important public measures are decided.

In an address delivered by him before the Montauk Club of Brooklyn, New York, at a dinner given by that club on April 26, 1913, in celebration of his seventy-ninth birthday, Senator Depew in speaking of goodfellowship at dinners, in part, said: "I have met most of the distinguished men and women of my time, in this and other countries, and with scarcely an exception the best I ever knew of them occurred at dinner.

"Judge Robertson, of Westchester County, New York, and I were invited by Secretary of State William H. Seward to dine with him in Washington on our way to the Republican National Convention which renominated President Abraham Lincoln. That dinner changed the vice-president from Daniel S. Dickinson, of New York, to Andrew Johnson, of Tennessee, and made a different chapter in American history."

Though Mr. Depew has not, until late in life, filled any important national position, he is probably better known, both at home and abroad, than many men of world-wide reputation. With a few exceptions, he is the best known American living to-day, and his yearly visits to Europe have made his personality familiar to almost everybody, from crowned heads to the common people. His popularity is owing partly to his accessibility, for, unlike most prominent men of affairs, he does not hedge himself in with impenetrable dignity, but is as ready to welcome the employees as the directors of his company; and partly because the kindness of his heart prompts such accessibility and makes him a friend of every reporter that comes to him for an "item of news."

Mr. Depew's orations and addresses are virtually a history of the past half century; and not only a mere record of events, but a political, industrial, commercial, educational, and social picture of the period in which he has been one of the most conspicuous figures. We must not forget, too, to note that he has found time to edit a series of the greatest orations of the world in twenty-four volumes, and a massive work entitled "One Hundred Years of American Commerce," a series of articles illustrating the progress of the country during the century. The latter work was published in 1895.

He received three-fourths of the Republican vote in the New York Legislature for United States Senator in 1877, but withdrew in favor of Warner Miller.

Mr. Depew received his A.M. in course, and in 1887, when he delivered the annual address to the Yale Law School, he was given the honorary degree of LL.D. In the following year he was elected a member of the Yale Corporation, a position which he held by re-election until 1906.

Mr. Depew was elected by the Legislature in 1874 Regent of the University of the State of New York and held the position for thirty-four years. He was also elected by the Alumni for two terms of six years each a member of the Corporation of Yale University.

It is almost needless to say that in Mr. Depew's long service in the United States Senate he won the praise not only of his native State of New York but of the Nation for his ability and his grasp of the great questions of the day. He was more successful than almost anyone in either House in getting bills passed relating to his State.

The Montauk Club of Brooklyn, New York, has indulged in the delightful habit of giving a dinner in celebration of Senator Depew's birthday for many years. On Saturday evening, April 28, 1917, the club gave its twenty-sixth annual "Depew Birthday Dinner," and in recognition of the high honor paid him on the eighty-third anniversary of the day of his birth, Senator Depew, as usual, delivered one of his instructive and happy orations.

His unfailing geniality and sincerity of spirit, with his flashing wit and his brilliant and forcible diction, has placed him in the front rank of popular post-prandial speakers of the United States.

In 1894, there was published "Life and Later Speeches of Chauncey M. Depew," a volume of forty speeches and 510 pages. Mr. Joseph B. Gilder, in his introduction, tells us: "Few living men have been called upon to fill so many offices of honor and responsibility, but still fewer, perhaps, have waived so many opportunities." "The fact that he himself is more eminent than any of his ancestors, though several of them were not without honor in their day, has not bated a jot or tittle of the regard in which Mr. Depew holds them—any more than the fact that Peekskill boasts no other citizen so famous as himself diminishes his just pride in his birthplace." "The speech in which he informed the Convention that he was not a candidate for the Presidency (of the United States), was one of the briefest, most forcible, and most dignified that he had ever made; yet he had never made one which gave so little satisfaction to his hearers, for it was felt that the group of able and available candidates was grievously lessened by his decision." This was in 1888. "The name of Edison has penetrated to remoter corners of the globe than that of Depew, but it would hardly be claimed that the personality of the great inventor was familiar to half so many men." "The public, which hears little of Mr. Depew except in his off moments—his hours of evening relaxation—has no conception of the amount of work he accomplishes. He reaches his office as early as most men of affairs, and leaves it later, and transacts daily a volume and variety of business that would drive the average man distracted, if submitted to him to be disposed of. More than fifty years' familiarity with the matters which he is called upon to decide makes his task an easier one than it would prove to anyone else." "For years his visits to England have been full of many activities, and after one of these visits, on his departure, Lord Rosebery telegraphed, 'Your departure eclipses the gayety of nations.'" "His model, when historical themes engage his attention, is Macaulay; and his preparation to deliver an historical address consists partly in reading over several of Macaulay's essays. The clear staccato quality of his periods, in all his serious utterances, must remind the reader or listener of his illustrious exemplar: and it would be hard to choose a more effective model for such orations, delivered in the main before people who prize lucidity above all other qualities in speech or writing." "The earliest of Mr. Depew's utterances, preserved in the two volumes of his public addresses, was made in response to the toast on 'Woman,' at the New England Society Dinner of December 22, 1865; and so invariably since then has he been a speaker at the New England's annual feasts, that the name of the Society cannot be mentioned nowadays without evoking the idea of Mr. Depew in the delivery of a post-prandial discourse. The time-honored banquets of the (New York) Chamber of Commerce vie with those of the New Englanders as a setting for the eloquence of 'Our Chauncey.' Other speakers may come and others go, at these two noted dinners; but Mr. Depew is as inevitable—and as invariably welcome—as the turkey at one or the wines and cigars at both. He is, in short, an integral part of the feast." "Mr. Depew, though by no means lacking in appreciation of the value of his achievements as an orator, is modest enough to admit that his most labored efforts are not necessarily the happiest."

Justin McCarthy, the eminent British author and M.P., in his "Reminiscences," discussing Lord Rosebery as an after-dinner speaker, says: "I rank him with Charles Dickens, with the late Lord Granville, with James Russell Lowell, and with Chauncey Depew, and I do not know that I can say anything higher in praise. I had many opportunities of meeting Dickens, and of course heard all his readings and heard him deliver several after-dinner speeches. Let me say at once that he was the very best after-dinner speaker I ever heard. I do not quite know whom I should put second to him. Sometimes I feel inclined to give Mr. James Russell Lowell that second place and sometimes my mind impels me to give it to Mr. Lowell's countryman, Mr. Chauncey Depew."

In a letter, United States Senator W. G. Harding, of Ohio, has this to say about Mr. Depew: "Just about a year ago (1916) it was my privilege as Chairman of the Republican Convention at Chicago, to call upon you for an address. There was a hiatus which called for speech, and you so wonderfully met the difficult requirements that I sat in fascinated admiration and have been ready ever since to pay you unstinted tribute. You were ever eloquent in your more active years, but I count you the old man eloquent and incomparable in your eighties." May many more helpful and happy years be yours."

On Saturday, May 1, 1915, when The Montauk Club, of Brooklyn, New York, gave its twenty-fourth Annual Birthday Dinner in celebration of Mr. Depew's Eighty-first Birthday, he said—"Mr. President and Gentlemen: For nearly a quarter of a century you have honored me by an annual celebration of my birthday. Each anniversary has had in the year since the preceding one much of interest, National and State, and in politics, in social evolution, in rapidly changing or crystallizing theories of life and government. But if these anniversaries ran back to the dawn of history there would be found no year like that through which we are passing, and if we could look forward through eternity it is not possible there should ever be such another. The forecasts of statesmen are failures.

The laudable and apparently successful efforts of the advocates of peace have become suddenly a ghastly farce. The higher ideals of Nations have been submerged in racial enmities and trade rivalries.

Organized Christianity is questioned as to the results of two thousand years' teaching, while millions of Christians are killing each other, and all the combatants calling upon God to help their just and righteous cause. Other millions of women and children rear rude shelters out of the ruins of their once happy homes and only relief supplies from neutral nations are saving them from starvation.

But they are enduring sufferings and death with martyr spirit which would not recall, if it was possible, the bread-winner fathers, sons and husbands fighting in the field. The agreements of the Hague Tribunal solemnly ratified by the contracting governments are shelved for the curiosity of the future historian. The warring powers repudiate these compacts, and neutral nations dare not protest, because protest means action and action means war. The Hague Peace Palace is to let. There never were preparations for war of such vast magnitude in order to preserve peace, and the perfection of the preparations made war inevitable. The irony of the situation is that the line is invisible between the size of armies and navies necessary for the national defence and militarism which provokes war.

After exhaustion has brought the belligerents on one side to seek terms of surrender, in the wisdom of that settlement will be either the seeds of another and more sanguinary war, or a peace which so saves the pride and dignity of the vanquished that the peace of the world may be assured for all the future. Recent history furnishes two wonderful examples. After the Franco-Prussian war victory was followed by vengeance. France was impoverished by an indemnity so large that it was expected to pauperize her people forever and despoiled of her fairest provinces. Hate and revenge grew with the unexpected and marvelous recovery and prosperity of France, and her sons inheriting the feelings of their fathers are cheerfully and enthusiastically battling to right the wrongs of 1870. In nations as with individuals, the spoiler waxes strong, arrogant and reckless. The spoiled nurses his wounds and bides his time. The second example is our Civil War, North and South, each believing they were right, battled as our race will until by force of superior numbers, wealth and equipment, the Union won and the Confederates were exhausted. Here in civil strife, with its passion and vindictiveness, were the possibilities of endless revolts and revolutions. But the rebel States were welcomed back into the Union with the same rights, powers and liberties under a common Constitution as the loyal States. The only exaction was the abolition of slavery which had been the cause of the war. Union and Confederate veterans fight over their battles in memory only at happy re-unions, and their children, knowing no North, no South, no East, no West, are proud citizens of the United States. For the second time in half a century since the close of the Civil War, the South and its economic theories are in absolute control of the Government. With militarism eliminated and peace preserved by an international police on land and sea, the greatest of wars may prove for mankind the most marvelous of blessings.

The event of this century which in future years will be regarded as the most important and significant of them all is the hundredth year of peace between the United States and Great Britain. The subject of international peace is to be the engrossing topic, when this terrible war ends, with statesmen, publicists, educators and the people. The incontestible fact that these two powerful nations, with frequent and graver causes for war than many which have plunged other governments into life and death battles, have settled all their difficulties by diplomacy during all these generations and have kept a boundary line of three thousand miles without a fort, and inland seas washing all their interior shores without a battleship, is a monumental argument for the peace of the world. It will grow in the minds and imagination of other nations as time rolls on."

The 1898 National Cyclopedic of American Biography, in 15 volumes, on page 530 of volume one, speaking of Chauncey Mitchell Depew—In public addresses on grave occasions, the unveiling of soldiers' monuments, at Grand Army meetings, on the occasions of gatherings of notable citizens for the purpose of discussing some important political or other incident or occurrence, Mr. Depew was always thought of among the first chosen to address the public on whatever topic might be presented. It was recognized that his general mental equipment, quickness of understanding and aptness of perception of the principal points in any question presented to him were quite unusual, while his self-possession and his wit rendered him a dangerous antagonist in political discussion and a most popular orator under any circumstances. As a mere suggestion of the character of his oratory, the following from a speech of Mr. Depew, before a Reunion of the Army of the Potomac in 1887, may be offered: "This is a republic and neither Mammon nor anarchy shall be king. The American asks only for a fair field and an equal chance. He believes that every man is entitled for himself and his children to the full enjoyment of all he honestly earns, but he will seek and find a means for eradicating the conditions which hopelessly handicap him from the start. In this contest he does not want the assistance of the red flag and he regards with equal hostility those who march under that banner and those who furnish argument and excuse for its existence."

- 15 14. Weyntie,² bapt. 27 March, 1675; sponsors, Karsten Luurzen and Engeltie Hercks; married first, about 1694, John Luyster; they had one child; married second, about 1699, Peter Hoff; they had one child.

- 16 15. Joseph,² bapt. 6 August, 1681; "geen getuygen"; no sponsors; no more trace; as he and his brother Peter are not named in the very full will of their brother Jacobus, and no marriage of either, and no baptism of any children to either, both must have died young.

Harck¹ or Herck¹ Siboutszen lived on the Heeren Geracht, now Broad Street, New York City, adjoining Abraham Ricken, until he moved to Newtown, Long Island, New York, about 1650. He was a ship carpenter. It has been questioned if he did not have two wives, but, if so, both were named Wyntie or Lavinia. He went, in 1650, to the Poor Bowery, on the south shore of Bowery Bay, Long Island, New York, now Newtown, where he died, his wife surviving. See James Riker's 1881 History of Harlem, New York, and his History of Newtown, Long Island, New York, page 316. He was granted 21 morgens of land 2 July, 1654, at Middleburg, Long Island, and 18 April, 1664, at the same place, was granted 8 morgens. A morgen was a Dutch land measure equal to about two acres.

His first three sons went to the Manor of Cortlandt, Westchester County, New York, and assumed the name of Kranckheyt. The brother Jacobus Harcksen (or Siboutszen), who remained in Newtown, Long Island, New York, also took the name of Kronckheyt. This name means "bad health" and reminds one of the German toast, "Gesundheit ist besser als Krankheit." Why they took such a name, can not now be explained.

The Dutch Church, New York, records show that Jacobus Kranckheyt, and Elizabeth Hegeman, syn huys vrouw (his wife), were sponsors, 14 November, 1714, at the baptism of Elizabeth, daughter of Coenraat Ten Yk and Zara Van Vorst.

In volume XI, page 67, of unrecorded wills, printed, in New York Surrogates' Office, appears the abstract of the following important will:

"Will of Jacobus Kronckheyt, yeoman, of Newtown, in Queens County, New York, dated 18 November, 1728; proved 3 March, 1728-1729; wife deceased; nephew Abraham Lent of Westchester County, son of my sister Tryntie, deceased, all my lands where I now dwell at a place called 'ye poor Bowery'; son-in-law Jacob Ten Eyck; brothers Sybeth and John Kronckheyt; to Arisen and Belitie Ten Eyck, and Engeltie Windeford, and Aertie Van Voorst; to Henry Juman, son of my sister Jannettie; to Ariantie Ryder and Wyntie Hoff; to the children of my sister Hilletie Snediker, deceased; to nephew Peter Luyster, of Oyster Bay, Long Island, New York, son of my sister Wyntie Hoff, a mulatto girl named Molly: niece Margaret Snediker; to the children of my deceased wife, Elizabeth; nephew Henry, son of my brother Theunis, deceased; four sisters Maritie and Belitie and Engeltie and Antie; nephew Henry, son of my sister Jannetie; to my sister Ariantie; to the children of my sister Hilletie, and to the said Abraham Lent; nephew Henry Inman; executors nephew Abraham Lent, and friend Samuel Fish, of Newtown; witnesses Andries Rieke and Peter Berrien and one other (name illegible).

SECOND GENERATION

8. Jan^s Herricksen Cranckheyt (Hercks¹ Syboutsen), bapt. 28 November, 1657; alive in 1730; married about 1695, Grietje ———; possibly Brouwer.

They had five children, all baptized in the Dutch Church, Tarrytown, New York:

- 62 1. Jan,^s bapt. (Number 12), 21 April, 1697; sponsors Jan Ecker and Rachel Van Weerdt; no more trace.
- 63 2. Herrick,^s bapt. (Number 35), 24 April, 1699; sponsors, Cornelis Van Texel and Marritje Herrickse; no more trace.
- 64 3. Fytie^s or Sophia,^s bapt. (Number 60), 18 April, 1702; sponsors, Albert Minnelay and wife Meenske (Jans); no more trace.
- 65 4. Neyritje,^s bapt. (Number 101), 4 June, 1705; sponsors Theunis Krankheyt and Mettje Wickelen; this was probably Wyntie, who married 19 March, 1719, Matthis Brouwer; they had four children.
- 66 + 5. Jacobus,^s bapt. (Number 166), 1 June, 1708; sponsors, Jacobus Krankheyt and wife Elizabeth (Hegeman); married first, about 1735, Geertje ———; married second, after 1751, Charity ———.

Jan² Herricksen and his three brothers, Sibout and Teunis and Jacobus all assumed the name of Cranckheyt. It is absurd to try to explain the name by assuming that all four brothers were sickly, as has been attempted. This is contrary to reason.

The 1900 History of Westchester County, New York, by Shonnard, on pages 166 and 167, says there were two tracts in the town of Cortland which neither Van Cortland nor his heirs ever owned; the first, called by the Indians Sachus or Sackhoes, became Ryke's Patent, embracing about 1800 acres between Verplanck's and Peekskill Creek, on which a large portion of the Village of Peekskill has been built, was bought from the Indians, 21 April, 1685, by Ryck Abramsen and Jacob Abramsen and Teunis Dekey (De Kay) and Seba Harxse and Jacob Harxse and John Harxse. Jacob Harxse, name changed to Cranckheyt, bought from the other patentees most of this tract. A large part of the village of Peekskill is on this ground. The property was divided among the heirs in succeeding generations and much of it sold. The remainder, which descended to Chauncey M. Depew, was given by him to the village of Peekskill for a public park, May 29, 1901. The second of the two strips on the Hudson, three hundred acres parcel front, was deeded 25 April, 1685, to Jacobus De Kay for the value of four hundred guilders, seawant, and became prior to 1732 the property of John Krankheyt. It is now the Peekskill State Camp. This land had a front on the inner and upper part of Peekskill Bay.

THIRD GENERATION

66. Jacobus³ Cranckheyt (Jan² Herricksen, Hercks¹ Syboutsen), bapt. 1 June, 1708; died 1773 before 10 February; married, first, about 1735, Geertje ———; Van Tassell, married, second, about 1753, Charity ———; she had no children.

Jacobus³ had four children, by his first wife:

- 300 + 1. Jacobus⁴ or James,⁴ bapt. (Number 923) in the Dutch Church, Tarrytown, New York, 18 October, 1737; sponsors, Hendrick Lent and Margrietie Lent; married first, about 1763, Esther Lent; married second, about 1771, Naomi Baker.

- 301 2. A daughter,⁴ born about 1739; married about 1759, Mr. ——— Teller; and had Olche⁵ Teller, born about 1760; this was probably Isaac Teller, born 4 November, 1729; died 24 December, 1768; his wife Catharine, born 26 February, 1741; died 12 May, 1766; aged 25 years, 2 months, and 16 days; both are buried in the Baptist Cemetery, three miles west of Yorktown Heights, New York.
- 302 3. Hannah,⁴ born about 1743; married ———, Peter Montross.
- 303 4. Margaret,⁴ born about 1751; married about 1775, John Lent; they had four children; she died 23 July, 1827, aged 76 years.

The will of Jacobus Crankheyt is recorded in liber 28, page 404, of the New York City Surrogate records.

FOURTH GENERATION

300. Captain James⁴ Kronkhite (Jacobus³ Cranckheyt, Jan² Herricksen, Hercks¹ Syboutsen), bapt. 18 October, 1737; he died ———, in Albany County, New York, where he had removed, late in life, to reside with his daughter, Mrs. John Angus; this was after January, 1804. He married, first, about 1763, Hester Lent; born about 1741; daughter of Lieutenant Hendrick⁷ and Elizabeth (Storm) Lent (see the Lent Line); married, second, about 1771, Naomi Baker.

Captain James⁴ Kronkhite had six daughters and one son:

- 1.+ Catrina,⁵ born 6 August, 1765; married 13 November, 1787, Abraham⁵ Depew.
2. Rachel,⁵ born about 1773; married 22 February, 1796, John Montross, of Peekskill, New York; no more trace.
3. Esther,⁵ born about 1775; married 14 January, 1804, John Angus of Albany, New York, by Rev. John Basset of the Dutch Reformed Church.
4. Geertie,⁵ born about 1778; no more trace.

5. Anna,^s born 30 December, 1783; died 1 July, 1861; married, 13 November, 1808, James D— Lent of Peekskill, New York; they had ten children.
6. A son,^s born ———; he was not 16 in 1790 census.
7. Maria,^s born 1 March, 1787; died 15 April, 1871; married ———, Samuel Lent, of Peekskill, New York; they had three children.

Captain James⁴ Kronkhite was a merchant in Peekskill, New York; also a Supervisor of Rikes Patent, Westchester County, New York. He was a Captain in the Colonial Militia, his Commission being dated 20 September, 1775; also a Captain in the Third Regiment, Westchester County, New York, Militia, War of the Revolution. He was captured in the Revolution by the British, and suffered imprisonment, but was exchanged. His home there appears between those of Abner Cutler and Abraham Van Tassel.

FIFTH GENERATION

Catharine⁵ Kronkhite and Abraham Depew had a son:

Isaac⁶ Depew, born 9 August, 1800, Peekskill, New York; married 26 December, 1832, Martha Minot Mitchell.

Isaac⁶ and Martha Minot (Mitchell) Depew had a son:

Chauncey Mitchell⁷ Depew, born 23 April, 1834, in Peekskill, New York; married, first, 9 November, 1871, Elise Ann Hegeman; married, second, 28 December, 1901, May Palmer.

CHAUNCEY ROOT MITCHELL

THE MITCHELL LINE

1. Matthew¹ Mitchell; born about 1590 in South Ouram, Parish of Halifax, Yorkshire, England; died about 1645, aged about 55 years, at Stamford, Connecticut; married 16 April, 1616, Susan Butterfield of Ovenden, Parish of Halifax, Yorkshire, England.

They had eight children, six of whom were baptized at South Ouram, England:

1. Abigail,² bapt. 26 April, 1618; probably died in infancy.
- 3 + 2. David,² bapt. 14 November, 1619; married, first, about 1650, Sarah Wheeler; married, second, about 1677, Elizabeth ———; probably Graves.
3. Sarah,² bapt. 14 October, 1621; married, about 1640, Honorable Samuel Sherman; they had nine children.
4. Martha,² bapt. 26 October, 1623; died 22 November, 1623, in England.
- 2 5. Reverend Jonathan,² born about 15 November, 1624; bapt. 19 December, 1624; died 9 July, 1668, in Cambridge, Massachusetts; married ———, Margaret Boradel, widow, and third wife of Reverend Thomas Shepard of Cambridge; Jonathan² had four sons and several daughters; Jonathan² graduated in 1647 from Harvard College; he preached 18 years at Cambridge, Massachusetts, from 1649 to 1667.
6. Susan,² bapt. 14 October, 1627; she survived her father and is named in his will; no more trace.
7. Matthew,² bapt. 5 July, 1629, at Ovenden, England; died 4 October, 1629, in England.

8. Hannah,² bapt. 26 June, 1631, at North Ouram, England; died 2 April, 1702; she was living at Stamford, Connecticut, at the time of her father's death and is one of those named in his will; married, first, about 1650, Robert Coe, of Stratford, Connecticut; they had four children; married, second, about 1665, Nicholas Elsey, of New Haven, Connecticut; they had one son.

Matthew¹ Mitchell sailed Saturday, 23 May, 1635, from Bristol, England, in the ship James, commanded by Captain Taylor, and arrived at Boston, Massachusetts, 17 August, 1635, with his wife Susan and children: David, aged 15 years; Sarah, aged 13 years; Jonathan, aged 11 years; Susan, aged 8 years, and Hannah, aged 4 years, along with Reverend Richard Mather, Reverend Richard Denton, and about one hundred other passengers. Matthew was a dissenter and is represented to have been not only a very pious man, but a man of very considerable fortune. He and his family spent the winter in Charlestown, Massachusetts, and moved in the spring of 1636 to Concord, Massachusetts, where he lost considerable property by fire. The next summer he moved to Saybrook, Connecticut. The next spring, 1637, he went to Wethersfield, Connecticut, where he lost still more of his property.

He here became one of the most extensive land owners in that community. He moved again, in 1640, to Stamford, Connecticut—then called Rippowam—where he was one of the founders. Mather says: "His house, barn and goods were again consumed by fire." He was a Deputy in 1637 to the General Court of Connecticut, which voted that "There shall be an offensive war against the Pequitt." He was Assistant in 1638. He served in the garrison at Saybrook Fort, under Lieutenant Lion Gardiner, in the Pequot War of 1636; also in the encounter with the Indians on the Connecticut River in 1636. "His history shows him to have been a man of great enterprise, unbounded resolution, clear and cool judgment, and of earnest and positive character. Too conscientious to live patiently under laws requiring a form of worship he thought wrong, and equally impatient under colonial decision that seemed needlessly arbitrary, his staunch uprightness commanded respect, and his unswerving justice invited confidence when trials demonstrated character." Mr. H. G. Somerby, of London, England, says: "The Mitchells were a family of good standing, and their arms were—a sable, a chevron between three escallops argent—and are painted on the roof of the chancel of the Halifax Church.”

The Stamford, Connecticut, records of “Town Meetings,” liber one, page 9, very much worn and defaced, contain the will of Matthew Mitchell.

See the printed 1868 History of Stamford, Connecticut, by Reverend Elijah Baldwin Huntington; also the printed 1872 History of Ancient Woodbury, Connecticut, by William Cothren, volume two, page 1519; also volume three, pages 219 to 221, of the 1861 Genealogical Dictionary, by James Savage; also the 1886 History of Stratford, Connecticut, by Samuel Orcutt.

SECOND GENERATION

3. David² Mitchell (Matthew¹), bapt. 14 November, 1619; died about 1685 in Stratford, Connecticut; married, first, about 1650, Sarah Wheeler, daughter of Thomas Wheeler; married, second, about 1677, Elizabeth ——— (probably Graves); no children by the second wife.

David² Mitchell had nine children by his first wife:

- 4 1. Deacon Matthew,³ born about 1653; settled in the Society at Southbury, Connecticut, before 1682; married about 1676 Mary Thompson; they had four children.
- 5 + 2. John,³ born about 1654; married about 1677 Elizabeth Knell.
- 6 3. Nathan,³ born about 1656; settled in Litchfield, Connecticut; no more trace.
- 7 4. Abraham,³ born about 1658; married about 1686 ———; they had two children; in 1694–1695 he was in Stratford, Connecticut, but in 1700 in Windham, Hartford County, Connecticut.
5. Daniel,³ born about 1666; married about 1698 Susanna Sherman; they had three children.
6. Martha,³ born about 1668; married about 1687, Nathan Baldwin, of Milford, Connecticut; they had one child.
7. Elizabeth,³ born about 1670; joined in 1692 the Stratford, Connecticut, church; no more trace.
8. Susanna,³ born about 1673; no more trace.
9. Grace,³ born about 1675; married 26 November, 1701, William Pixley; they had two children.

David² Mitchell came with his father from England. He purchased on 26 February, 1656, of John Reber or Reeder his home and lot and all his interest in the Stratford, Connecticut, lands. At the time of his death he was one of the largest landed proprietors of Stratford, Connecticut. The 1872 History of Ancient Woodbury, Connecticut, by William Cothren, volume two, page 1518, says: "David Mitchell married Sarah Wheeler, daughter of Thomas, so his son Nathan³ Mitchell (then of Litchfield) said in 1724 on the Stratford Land Records; but whether her father were Thomas Wheeler of New Haven, or Thomas Wheeler of Milford, or Thomas Wheeler of Fairfield, does not appear." A search at Stratford, Connecticut, of the deeds does not show this deed in the individual book indexes, and there is yet no General Index at Stratford for deeds before 1860. Several volumes of their deeds were examined, but Mr. Eardeley did not find this deed. If it was recorded some years after it was executed, then it is probably in a volume under a later date. The page and volume are desired. Sarah Wheeler was not the daughter of Thomas Wheeler of Milford, as his full will is printed in the large 1914 Wheeler Family in America, and it names only his ten sons and some nephews and grandchildren. Thomas Wheeler of Fairfield had a daughter Sarah who married about 1652 Thomas² Sherwood of Fairfield, and had children from 1654 to 1659. Thomas Wheeler of New Haven left no will and the 1914 Wheeler Family gives him a daughter Sarah who probably married Josiah Horton of Southold, Long Island, New York, or Francis Sayre of Southampton, Long Island, New York.

The Stamford, Connecticut, records of "Town Meetings," liber one, page 47, gives the lands there of David² Mitchell.

The Fairfield, Connecticut, Probate Records, liber three, volume 1675 to 1689, have the will of David² Mitchell, of Stratford, Connecticut, dated 11 March, 1685-1686; proved ———; names his widow, Elizabeth; children, Matthew and John and Abraham; the house the deceased purchased of John Hubbell, and son, Daniel, and four daughters, Martha and Elizabeth and Susanna and Grace; overseers were widow, Elizabeth, with the two sons, Matthew and John, with John Sherman, called a Kinsman, and Mr. Israel Chancy; witnesses, John Birdseye and John Johnson; inventory, dated 29 March, 1686, taken by Samuel Sherman and James Judson and Joseph Curtis, selectmen.

David² Mitchell came to Boston, Massachusetts, with his father; went to Saybrook, Connecticut, to Wethersfield, to Stamford, Connecticut, where he had land in 1650. He was invited to teach the school December, 1649, in Watertown, Massachusetts. David² Mitchell went in 1665 to Stratford, Connecticut, when he had two sons. In November, 1675, he was entrusted by the Council of War with important affairs. See the printed 1861 Genealogical Dictionary, by James Savage, volume three, page 219; also the History of Stratford, Connecticut, by Samuel Orcutt; also the 1854 History of Ancient Woodbury, Connecticut, by William Cothren, volume one, page 634.

The printed Hartford, Connecticut, Probate Records, give the will of George Grave, of Hartford, dated 29 October, 1686 (he died 3 December, 1692), and names his wife, Elizabeth, and children, John and George and Elizabeth Mitchell and Sarah Loomis and Mercy Grave; George Graves married, 2 April, 1651, Elizabeth Ventris; Sarah Graves married, 27 December, 1688, Jonathan Loomis, and had five children. See the 1860 Genealogical Dictionary, by James Savage, volume two, page 294.

The printed Hartford, Connecticut, Probate Records, give the will of George Grave, dated 3 May, 1699 (he died 20 June, 1699); no wife named; sister, Elizabeth Mitchell; brother, John Grave; cousin (nephew?) John Mitchell; brother, Robert Shurly, sole executor; witnesses, Hezekiah Wyllys and Nathaniel Arnold; inventory, dated 10 July, 1699, was taken by Thomas Bunce and Ebenezer Hopkins.

Abraham² Mitchell (David² Mathew¹), married, after — March, 1697, but before 5 July, 1699, to Mary, widow of Samuel Abby, of Windham, Connecticut.

Matthew¹ Mitchell was in Springfield, Massachusetts, in May, 1636. His name is on the first list of the colony at Stamford, Connecticut (Ripowam), 1640-1641, and stands next after the minister, Reverend Richard Denton, and is first on the next two lists. He went in 1644, with the minister, to Hempstead, Long Island, New York, but soon returned to Stamford, Connecticut. His will was proved at Stamford, Connecticut, 16 June, 1646, as above. He died before 19 May, 1646, as is evidenced from the statement of the court that approved his will.

See the printed 1868 History of Stamford, Connecticut, by Reverend Elijah Baldwin Huntington, pages 38 and 58 and 280; also the printed probate Records of Hartford, Connecticut, and Hinman's Early Settlers of Connecticut.

MARTHA MINOT MITCHELL,
BORN MARTHA SHERMAN.

Martha Sherman, the wife of Reverend Justus⁶ Mitchell, was a sister of the Honorable Roger Minot Sherman, and a niece of the Honorable Roger Sherman, who was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. She was an exceedingly intellectual and a beautiful woman. The printed 1854 History of Ancient Woodbury, Connecticut, by William Cothren, volume one, page 452, says Reverend Justus Mitchell, V. D. M., was a native of Woodbury; was graduated in 1776 at Yale College; and was settled, in 1783, over the Congregational Church at New Canaan, Connecticut, where he continued to reside. He was a talented and useful man in the sphere of his labors.

The following inscription, copied from his monument in the old graveyard in New Canaan, Connecticut, contains an epitome of his history and of his life and character:

“In Memory of the Rev. Justus Mitchell, A. M., V. D. M., pastor of the Church of Christ, in New Canaan, who died suddenly in the hour of sleep, 24th September, A. D. 1806, in the fifty-second year of his age, and twenty-fifth of his Ministry. In death was lost: to his consort, an affectionate and beloved husband; to his children, a kind, revered parent, counsellor and guide; to his flock, a faithful, learned and venerated pastor; to the Church of Christ, a bright ornament and example; to the poor, a liberal benefactor; to the disconsolate, a comforter and friend.

“In doctrine uncorrupt, in language plain,
And plain in manner, decent, solemn, chaste,
Affectionate in look, and much impress’d.
By him the violated law spoke out
Its thunder; and by him, in strains as sweet
As angels use, the gospel whisper’d peace.”

See the printed 1903 Yale Biographies, volume three, page 623, by Franklin Bowditch Dexter.

In the original manuscript church records of the New Canaan, Conn., Congregational Church it is recorded that Reverend Justus Mitchell, with unusual engagedness, preached a sermon at the house of Mr. Theophilus Fitch from the text “Is any among you afflicted, let him pray,” and returned home, retired to bed and died suddenly in a fit.

See the 1901 printed records of the First Reformed Dutch Church, Tarrytown, New York, by Reverend David Cole; also page 394 of the printed 1881 Early Settlers of Kings County, New York, by Teunis G. Bergen; also the 1910 New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, on page 49, The Dutcher Family, by Walter Kenneth Griffin.

Walter Kenneth Griffin says: "Many Hollanders took at Tarrytown (New York), for the first time, a family name of record, or changed their previous geographical names, e.g., the Rikers, who became known as Kranckheits." The study of the Dutch Church records convinces Mr. William A. Eardeley that it was the Syboutsen (not the Riker) family who took the name of Kranckheit; while one branch of the Rikers, the ones who went to Tarrytown, New York, took the name of van Lent, while Wouterse or van Goede became Van Weert. This was not a custom peculiar especially to Tarrytown, but was done elsewhere in the Dutch Colonies, as Mr. Griffin was probably aware, e.g., Van Tuyt became in New York City De Key or De Kay; Van Der Beeck, on Long Island, became Remsen; Hansen became Bergen; Martin became Wiltse; Ariaense in Tappan, New York, became Smith; Gerritszen became Blauvelt; Hendrikze became Hogenkamp, etc. Many other instances could be cited. It is not always apparent why these changes took place, but they are apparent to any one who takes the trouble to study the early Dutch Church records.

The name "Weert" is allied to the English term Weir, a river or marsh dam, and indicates low-lying country, liable to overflow. The Van Weert intermarriages with the Dutcher family are numerous.

William H. Johnston was Sheriff and Surrogate of Putnam County, New York; his will is in liber B, page 262, of the Carmel, New York, Surrogate's Office; dated at Carmel 19 February, 1826; proved 17 January, 1828; wife, Susan; children, Sarah Van Wyck Johnston and Robert Johnston; nephew, William Johnston Mitchell, son of my sister Ann Mitchell; my father was Robert Johnston; my mother was Elizabeth Johnston; my sister, Mary Johnston; executors, Abram Smith, Esq., of the town of Phillips Town, and Alfred Lounsberry, of Carmel, and Theodorus Van Wyck, of Fishkill; witnesses, William H—— Sloat and Platt P—— Smith and Joseph Benedict; codicil, 25 November, 1827, added to my executors my brother-in-law, Ward B—— Howard, of Cortland, Westchester County, New York; file box 468 has the original will; file box 557 has the petition, dated 11 July, 1831; says he died in Carmel, — January, 1828; widow, Susan, and two infant children, Sarah, aged 8 years, and Robert, aged 6 years; deposition says the bonds and mortgages are in the hands of Mrs. Mitchell, who resides in Peekskill, and who is a sister of the wife of Ward B—— Howard; that said Howard married, about 1821, Lucia Johnston, after the date of the will of Robert Johnston, and she is still living; the heirs of Eliza Delavan, who deceased before Robert Johnston; Mary Johnston, aged over 60 years; that Robert Johnston died in the years 1821 or 1822, leaving widow, Elizabeth, and Mrs. Mitchell (she has four children) and Mary; two other daughters, Mrs. Niven and Mrs. Van Arsdale.

4. Margaret,² born 22 February, 1782; died 21 April, 1848; married, 14 October, 1800, Elias Van Arsdale, Senr. See the Ogden line for their six children.
5. Anna MacArthur,² born 1 November, 1785, at Lake Mahopac, Putnam County, New York; married, about 1807, Chauncey Root Mitchell.

6. Charlotte,² born about 1787; married, about 1810, George W—— Niven, of New York. See the Ogden line for their two children.
7. Lucia,² born about 1789; married, about 1821, Ward B—— Howard.

Judge Robert¹ Johnston came from Armagh, Ireland, in early manhood (in 1755, it is thought), to New York City, and engaged in mercantile business. Later he moved to Lake Mahopac, Putnam County, New York, and engaged in the same business. He was among the most prominent of the early settlers there and became a leader in political as well as commercial circles. He was an influential Democrat; served as County Judge; Member of the New York State Assembly for Dutchess County 1798 to 1800, Member of the New York State Senate 1804 to 1807, and a Member of the Council of Appointment and Revision. He was a member of the 22nd, 23rd and 24th Sessions of the Assembly, 1798, 1799, 1800, 1801; Senator, 28th Session, 1804–1805; Senator, 29th Session, 1806–1807; Senator, 30th Session, 1808–1809.

He was at one time the owner of the entire Lake Mahopac. He married after he came to the United States and reared a family of seven children. The deeds to his property were destroyed and he petitioned the New York Legislature, which confirmed his right to the property he claimed. The printed 1886 History of Putnam County, New York, by William Smith Pelletreau, page 346, says: Robert Johnston purchased, about 1799, from William Smith, the (Red) mills and lands adjoining; and before 1800 he purchased from William Smith "the large island in the large pond called Hustin's Pond," Lake Mahopac, Carmel, New York; this was sold on 24th December, 1828, to Silas Slawson, for five hundred and fifty dollars.

As his name does not appear on the printed 1790 Census of New York State, it would seem he must then have been living in New Jersey, from which State his wife came; the 1790 Census for New Jersey was destroyed when the British burned Washington, D. C., during the 1812 War.

The 1885 volume of the Collections of the New York Historical Society, Burghers and Freemen of New York, at a Common Council held the 1st day of April, 1789, Robert Johnston, Shopkeeper, admitted Freeman.

In April, 1803, Robert Johnston and Joshua M—— Brett and James Burt were elected State Senators in the Middle District. On the 28th

January, 1806, Dewitt Clinton, Robert Johnston and Adam Comstock and Henry Huntington were nominated to form a Council of Appointment, and were afterwards elected by the House.

Robert Johnston was a lay Judge of Dutchess County, New York. His will is recorded in liber B, page 182, of the Putnam County, New York, Surrogate Office at Carmel, New York, and is dated at Carmel 29 November, 1815, and proved 29 December, 1824.

See page 897 of the printed 1897 Commemorative and Biographical Record of Dutchess County, New York; also page IX of the printed 1882 large History of Dutchess County, New York, by James H—— Smith.

Only one child is discovered:

- 1 + 1. Elizabeth,² born about 1623; death not found; married, first, about 1643, Thomas Knowles; he died before 1648; married, second, about 1650, Nicholas Knell (see page 95).

2. Thomas³ Knowles, born about 1647; no more trace.

The printed 1895 Street Genealogy, page 4, by Mrs. Mary A. Street, has: Reverend Nicholas¹ Street, bapt. 29 January, 1603, in England; died 22 April, 1674, in New Haven, Connecticut; married, first, ———, ———; her name unknown; married, second, after November, 1660, Mary, widow of Governor Francis Newman, of New Haven. The printed 1884 Leete Genealogy, by Edward L. Leete, has: Governor William¹ Leete, born ———; died 16 April, 1683; married, first, about 1638, in England, Anne Payne; they had nine children; she died 1 September, 1668; he married, second, 7 April, 1670, Sarah, widow of Henry Rutherford; they had no children; she died 10 February, 1673; William Leete married, third, after 22 April, 1674, Mary, the widow of Reverend Nicholas¹ Street, and the widow of Governor Francis¹ Newman; she died 13 December, 1683.

Governor Francis¹ Newman was in New Haven, Connecticut, in 1638. He was an Assistant in 1653 and after, until he was made Governor in May, 1658; he died as the Governor. He also served in the important place of Commissioner of the United Colonies in 1654 and 1658, and in the troublesome relations with the Dutch of New Netherlands. In his barn, in June, 1639, was formed the compact or civil constitution by which for many years the Colony was ruled. In the published 1914 Historical Catalogue of the First Church of Christ of New Haven, Connecticut, by Franklin Bowditch Dexter, on the Church Membership List his name is Number 38, and his wife, Mary, is Number 39; and she was dismissed in 1675.

The printed 1881 History of the Colony of New Haven, by Charles E. Atwater, has, on page 41: "Besides these who were related to Reverend John Davenport, as his former parishioners, or to Theophilus Eaton by family ties, several citizens of London joined the company. Not all of them can now be distinguished from those who came from other parts of the Kingdom (of England), but there is more or less authority for including in such a list the names of Stephen Goodyear, Richard Malbon, Thomas Gregson, William Peck, Robert Newman, Francis Newman, and Ezekiel Cheever." Page 111, a schedule, prepared before April, 1641, of the names of the Planters, shows two persons numbered in his family (i. e., family of Francis Newman), 160 acres, 9 acres of meadow, etc. Page 118: . . . the corner lot which had been Samuel Eaton's was sold in 1649 to Francis Newman. Page 144: "Francis Newman, the owner of the next lot, was admitted a freeman in 1640, chosen ensign in 1642 of the train-band, lieutenant of the Artillery Company in 1645 upon its formation, secretary of the plantation in 1647, and was finally advanced to the highest office in the jurisdiction, being chosen Governor after Eaton's death." Page 197: "Mr. Samuel Eaton and Mr. Francis Newman, being invited to go with the company as magistrates, took the matter into consideration, and on the 4th of December (1654) gave their consent conditional" about a company settling at Delaware Bay. Page 211, in regard to the exorbitant prices charged by the Widow Stolyon at her store, No. 10. That she sold needles at one a penny which might be bought in Old England at 12 pence or 18 pence per hundred, as Mr. Francis Newman affirmeth." Page 297: "Besides the officers already mentioned, 'the trained band' had an ensign, four sergeants, and four corporals. In 1642 the ensign, or ancient as he was usually styled, was Francis Newman, afterwards Governor of the jurisdiction." Page 415: "At the court of election in the following May (1658), Francis Newman, who for some years had been secretary of the jurisdiction, was chosen Governor, and William Leete, deputy-governor." Page 416: "The votes of the present freemen and some few proxies carried the election for Governor to Mr. Newman by plurality of votes, which he strongly refused; but importunity of many in the court at last overcame him to accept it. . . . Mr. Newman and Mr. Leete were re-elected in 1659 and 1660." On the 17th of October of the latter year a court of magistrates was held, at which the following record was made, the Governor being absent: ". . . By reason of the afflicting hand of God on New Haven by much sickness, the Court could not pitch upon a day for public thanksgiving through the colony for the mercies for the past year, and did therefore leave it to the Elders of the Church at New Haven, as God may be pleased to remove his hand from the Governor and others, to give notice to the rest of the plantations what day they judge fit for that duty, that we may give thanks and rejoice before the Lord together." Governor Newman died 18 November, 1660. Mr. Davenport, in a letter to his friend Winthrop, thus communicates the particulars of his decease: "We hoped he was in a good way of recovery from his former sickness, and were comforted with his presence in the assembly two Lord's days, and at one meeting of the Church on a week day, without sensible inconvenience. And on the morning of the day of public thanksgiving, he found himself encouraged to come to the public assembly. But after the morning sermon he told me that he found himself exceedingly cold from head to toe; yet having dined, he was refreshed, and came to the meeting in the afternoon, the day continuing very cold. That night he was very ill; yet he did not complain of any relapse into his former disease, but of inward cold, which he and we hoped might be removed by his keeping warm and using other suitable means. I believe he did not think that the time of his departure was so near, or that he should die of this distemper, though he was always prepared for his great change. The last day of the week he desired my son to come to him the next morning to write a bill for him to be prayed for, according to his direction. My son went to him after the beating of the first drum, but finding himself not fit to speak much, he prayed him to write for him what he thought fit.

"When the second drum beat, I was sent for to him. But before I came, though I made haste, his precious immortal soul was departed from its house of clay unto the souls of just men made perfect. We were not worthy of him, a true Nathanael, an Israelite indeed, who served God in Christ in sincerity and truth. He honored God in his personal conversation, and in his administration of chief magistracy in this colony, and God hath given him honor in the hearts of his people."

THE OGDEN LINE

1. John¹ Ogden, born 19 September, 1609, in Bradley Plain, Hampshire, England; died — May, 1682, in Elizabethtown, New Jersey; married in Bradley Plain, England, 8 May, 1637, Jane Bond; born — ; death not found; daughter of Jonathan Bond, of England.

John¹ and Jane (Bond) Ogden had six children:

- 2 1. John,² born in England 3 March, 1638; married ———, Elizabeth Plum or Plumb; they had one child.
- 3 + 2. David,² born a twin 11 January, 1639, in England; married about 1676, Mrs. Elizabeth (Swaine) Ward.

- 6 5. Benjamin,² born about 1654; married ———, Hannah Woodruff; they had three children.
- 7 6. Mary,² born about 1656; married ———, John Woodruff; they had eight children.

The printed 1907 Ogden Family says: "The facts underlying the life and character of John¹ Ogden, the Pilgrim, have been fully investigated. His sterling character having been transmitted through so many honored descendants . . . so much valuable data connected with his illustrious ancestor and the projected lines of descent." His ancestry is here traced to 1453. The coat-of-arms—"sable, on a fesse argent, between three acorns gold, as many oak leaves vert"; motto—"Tan Que Je Puis" (So much as I can do).

He was in Southampton, Long Island, New York, 17 April, 1640, where he owned Shinnecock Hill. To Stamford, Connecticut, in 1641; to Hempstead and Northampton, Long Island, New York, 1644 to 1650; patentee of Connecticut in 1662; in 1664 he was one of the Founders of Elizabeth, New Jersey; was Deputy-Governor there 1 November, 1665; was one of the Burgesses 26 May, 1668; Governor in 1673 of the English towns in East New Jersey. Philip Carteret was the Governor and proprietor. John¹ Ogden and his brother, Richard Ogden, were, in May, 1642, the builders of Governor William Kieft's Stone Church at New Amsterdam, by contract with Governor William Kieft and Gisbert op Dyck and Thomas Willet, of New Amsterdam, Church Wardens, to build a stone church in the fort, 72 feet by 50 feet, for the sum of 2500 guilders ($1,000) to be paid in beaver, cash, or merchandise, one hundred guilders to be added if the work proved satisfactory, and the use of the company's boat to be given the builders for carrying stone, a month or six weeks if necessary. The work was duly and satisfactorily completed. The integrity and ability of John Ogden in public affairs are well attested. He was made a freeman of Southampton, Long Island, New York, 31 March, 1650, and was chosen by the General Court at Hartford, Connecticut, 16 May, 1656, and again in 1657 and 1658, as one of the magistrates for the Colony. He sat in the General Court, as a Representative from Southampton, New York, in 1659, and in the upper house in May, 1661, and afterwards. His name appears repeatedly in the new Charter of Connecticut, obtained 23 April, 1662, by Governor Winthrop from King Charles the Second, as one of the magistrates and patentees of the Colony. He was held in high honor at home, being one of the first men. He was appointed a Justice of the Peace at Elizabeth, New Jersey, 26 October, 1665, and November 1 as one of Governor Philip Carteret's Council. In the 1668 legislature he was one of the Burgesses from this town.

The printed 1892 Salisbury's Family Histories and Genealogies, volume 2, page 232, has: Mr. John Ogden was chosen 1 September, 1673, to be Schout or Burgomaster of the six towns in New Jersey (Elizabeth, Newark, Woodbridge, Piscataway, Shrewsbury, and Middletown), "Giving and by these presents granting unto the said John Ogden full power, strength and authority in their said offices. The said Schout together with ye Schepens or magistrates of ye respective Townes to Rule and governe as well their Inhabitants as Strangers." John Ogden was virtually Governor of the English towns in New Jersey and the government was administered very much after the fashion of New England.

John Ogden was a man of more than ordinary mark—a man of sterling worth, of whom the town, as well as his numerous posterity, should be gratefully mindful; whose wanderings for forty years had justly entitled him to rank with the “Pilgrim Fathers”; the acknowledged pioneer of the town, in whose house the first white child of the settlement was born, the accepted leader of the people, a pillar of the Church and State, honored and trusted by all. He left the impress of his political and religious principles, not only upon his children, but upon the community that he had so largely aided in founding. He was held in high esteem by the accomplished, sagacious and pious Winthrop. John Ogden had been, both at Southampton and Elizabeth, an honored magistrate, loved and trusted by the people, and during the Dutch rule, the virtual Governor of the English portion of the Province of New Jersey. He was a true patriot and a genuine Christian, devoting himself while living to the best interests of the town, and dying, bequeathed to his sons the work of completing what he had so fairly and effectually inaugurated—the establishment of a vigorous plantation founded on the principles of civil and religious liberty.

His last will and testament is at Trenton, New Jersey, in the books “Unrecorded Wills,” liber 4, page 285; also in the Deeds, liber 4, page 12.

THE SWAYNE LINE

1. William¹ Swayne, or Swaine, or Swain, born about 1585; death not found; the name of his wife is not known.

They had three children:

- 2 + 1. Samuel,² born about 1622; married about 1646, Joannah (Ward?).
- 3 2. Daniel,² born about 1624; married ———, 1651, Dorcas Rose; they had nine children.
- 4 3. Mary,² born about 1626; it is said she married and moved to New Haven, Connecticut, but we do not know to whom she was married.

William¹ Swayne came from London, England, in April, 1635, in the "Elizabeth and Ann"; he was made a freeman in Watertown, Massachusetts, 3 March, 1635-1636; he represented that town in May, 1636; he went to Wethersfield, Connecticut; he was one of the Commissioners appointed 3 March, 1635-1636 by the General Court "to govern the people at Conecticut, with full judicial powers"; he went, in 1644, to Branford, Connecticut, where he had 435 acres of land. These very early appointments to office imply a good repute and a high reputation brought with him from England for character, administrative ability and dignity of position there. He was a member for Wethersfield, Connecticut, of the third General Court in the colony held 1 September, 1636, being called "Gentleman"; also he was a member of several later Courts and more than once chosen Assistant. When the Pequoids in May, 1637, came up the Connecticut River to Wethersfield, they killed several people "and carried away two maids," daughters of William Swayne, the eldest being aged about 16 years; both were later rescued from Pequot, now New London, Connecticut.

SECOND GENERATION

2. Captain Samuel² Swayne (William¹), born about 1622; died before 17 March, 1681-1682; married about 1646 Joannah (Ward?); she did not die before 5 December, 1690, as several authorities state, as is shown by her will given below.

Captain Samuel² and Joannah Swayne had nine children:

- 5 1. Elizabeth,³ born about 1647; bapt. 1 June, 1651, at New Haven, Connecticut; she died young.
- 6 2. Mary,³ born 1 May, 1649; bapt. 1 June, 1651, at New Haven, Connecticut; died aged six years.
- 7 3. Joanna,³ born about 1651; died 16 September, 1720, aged 69 years; married ———, Jasper Crane; he was born in 1650; they had six children.
- 8 + 4. Elizabeth,³ born 24 April, 1654; married, first, ———, her cousin, Josiah Ward; they had one son; married, second, about 1676, David Ogden.
- 9 5. Phebe,³ born 24 May, 1655; she died young.
- 10 6. Mary,³ born 12 June, 1656; she died young.
- 11 7. Abigail,³ born about 1657; married ———, Eleazer Lampson; no more trace.

- 13 9. Sarah,³ born 7 October, 1661; married ———, Thomas Johnson; they had five children.

Captain Samuel² Swayne went in 1644 to Branford, Connecticut. He was 27 times a member of the General Court of Connecticut, between 25 May, 1653, and 7 January, 1663; in 1667 he went to Newark, New Jersey. He had previously been a Lieutenant, but after the departure of Captain Robert Treat to Connecticut, Samuel Swayne was raised to the captaincy in 1673 of the Newark forces. He was from the beginning here one of the leading men and prominent in all the most important concerns of the Colony.

The printed 1853 Historical Discourse of the First Presbyterian Church of Newark, New Jersey, by Reverend Jonathan F. Stearns, page 33, has: Samuel Swaine deserves notice as having been constantly chosen for "the third man" among the deputies to the General Assembly to supply the place of either of the others who might fail, and as such having represented the town of Newark, New Jersey, instead of Jasper Crane, in the first General Assembly ever held in the Province. He was a millwright by trade, and a Lieutenant by office. The old corn mill situated on "Mill Brook" near the present Stone Bridge, and erected by Lieutenant Swaine's skill, deserves a passing notice as among the primitive "public institutions" of our town upon Passaic River. It was the next considerable undertaking after the meeting house, and liberal offers were at first made to any who would volunteer in the work, "for the supply of the town with good grinding." But "none appearing to accept the town's motion and encouragement," the next step was "to set upon it in a general way; and moving to Lieutenant Swaine about the matter, he made some propositions to the town," and they finally came to an agreement to give him for his services "twenty shillings by the week and three pounds over for his skill," unless, as the agreement ran, "he shall see cause to abate it, which, if he should see cause to do, the town will take it thankfully." On page 82 Dr. Stearns has of Captain Swayne, that he "happening to be in New York when disease seized him, and death seemed to be not far, thus testified the readiness of his spirit to answer the last summons: I, Samuel Swaine, being in perfect sense and memory, not knowing how long the Lord will continue the same mercy to me, being weak under His good hand of Providence, and willing to be at His dispose—therefore for life or death to leave this as my last testament." The instrument is dated 17 March, 1681-1682, and gives all to his beloved wife, Joanna. It is recorded on page 35 of the Newark Town Book, dated 1691, now in the possession of the New Jersey Historical Society at Newark, New Jersey.

Having come in 1635, Samuel Swayne was in this country from 45 to 46 years. It may be presumed that he died in that illness, as his name does not appear after the list made in 1680.

The printed 1901 Archives of the State of New Jersey, volume XXIII, page 449, has an abstract of the will of Johanna Swain, widow of Samuel, no place of residence named, dated 25 March, 1692, proved 10 September, 1695. It names daughter, Elizabeth Ogden; son-in-law, Eliezer Lampson; daughter, Abigail Lampson; son and daughter, Jasper and Johannah Crane; son and daughter, Nathaniel and Christian Ward; son and daughter, Thomas and Sarah Johnson; home lot in Newark, land at the Mountain, land beyond the great swamp. Personal estate, a silver tea box. John Curtis and John Browne, overseers. Witnesses, John Browne and Joseph Harison. It is recorded in liber 21, page 218, of Essex County, New Jersey, Wills; and in liber E, page 165, of Deeds, at Trenton, New Jersey.

THIRD GENERATION

Captain John³ Minot (Elder George,² John¹), born 2 April, 1626, in England; died 12 August, 1669, at the early age of 43 years, in Dorchester, Massachusetts; married, first, by Governor Thomas Dudley, 19 May, 1647, Lydia² Butler; born about 1622; died 24 January, 1667, in Dorchester, Massachusetts; daughter of Nicholas¹ and Joice Butler.

John³ Minot resided in Dorchester, where he was made a freeman in 1665, the delay being due to his persistence in refraining from membership in the Church, which was a qualification for a freeman.

The printed 1894 New England Historic and Genealogical Register, volume 48, page 325, has from the Suffolk County, Massachusetts, records, Number 515, liber 6, page 39, an abstract of the will of John Minot, of Dorchester, dated 15 July, 1669; it provides for the necessity of his father. His wife to dwell in the house and have fifty pounds. His son John one hundred pounds over an equal dividend with the rest of the children. His daughter Martha, as a particular remembrance of her mother, all her mother's clothes and linen. His son Stephen to be placed at some convenient trade. He was a representative, and eminently a useful man. Tradition accords to him a character worthy the following epitaph, which is engraven on his gravestone:

“Here is interred the remains of

Excelling Grammarian, Enriched

a Commanding Officer, a Physician of Great Value, a Great Lover of Peace

In the above family, two sisters married two brothers by the name of Barrett, two other sisters married brothers by the name of Adams, a brother and a sister married a brother and sister by the name of Lane, and two were born on the same day and married the same day. There are few parents who have so great reason to be “happy in a virtuous posterity” as had these. One son, Timothy, was a minister; another, Samuel, was a deacon, and eight of the grandchildren were deacons or married to deacons; several were clergymen or married to clergymen. Very many of the great-grandchildren sustained the same offices, or were otherwise distinguished in military, civil or religious life. A large proportion of those who arrived at mature age professed religion, and the succeeding and numerous families were among the most respected, useful and influential in the towns in which they lived.

Very many distinguished men descended from them, among whom were Reverend Stephen Farrar and Honorable Timothy Farrar, of New Ipswich, New Hampshire; Roger Minot Sherman, of Fairfield, Connecticut, and several eminent physicians by the name of Adams, and Honorable Roger Sherman and several other distinguished men of New Haven, Connecticut, married descendants.

The rise to prominence of Captain Timothy Wheeler was very rapid after his arrival in Concord, and his high influence in the affairs of the Colony within a very short time, is the subject of wide mention by all historians. His activity in the general welfare of the Colony was continuous, and he took time from his military duties to serve on various town civil committees, and to serve as representative for 18 years, being a signer of almost every petition presented in the town's behalf, during his lifetime there. He was made 6 May, 1646, the Ensign of the train band, and later became its Captain. His will, made 1 March, 1686-1687, and sworn to 7 September, 1687, is printed in full in the large 1914 Wheeler Family Genealogy in America, on page 134, and is a long document. His widow Mary made her will 20 April, 1691, proved 30 October, 1693, and this will is also printed in full in the 1914 Wheeler Family Genealogy. She could not have been aged 93 at death, in October, 1693, as is stated, and still have three children when she was aged over 55 years.

Some authorities think the third wife, Mary Dunster, may also have been a sister of the Reverend Henry Dunster.

Simon¹ Willard arrived in New England, in May, 1634, with his wife Mary, and daughter Mary; in 1635 he went to the new settlement at Concord, Massachusetts; he went, about 1660, to Lancaster, Massachusetts. The printed 1862 Genealogical Dictionary, by James Savage, volume 4, page 555, says, it supposes that Simon¹ Willard must have had some acquaintance in England with military duty, for he is made Lieutenant here as early as 1637; Captain in 1646; and Major in 1655, the highest rank at that time; he was a representative from 1636 to 1649; he was chosen Assistant in 1657, and held this position till his death, 24 April, 1676. Before the Indians destroyed Groton, Massachusetts, in 1676, to which place he had removed a few years earlier, he had established his retreat at Salem, Massachusetts, but he died at Charlestown, Massachusetts, during the session of the Court of Assistants. For his services, the government had many years before, made him a grant of one thousand acres, which he had never taken up but had given to his daughter Elizabeth on her marriage; but his widow Mary was compelled to petition for it in the year of his death. The printed 1877 History of Cambridge, Massachusetts, by Lucius R. Paige, page 691, says, Simon¹ Willard came in 1634 to America and settled in Cambridge, his residence being at the South East corner of Dunster and Winthrop Streets; in 1635 he removed to Concord, of which place he was the most prominent citizen during his long life; for about forty years in succession, he served as Representative and Assistant, and commanded the Middlesex Militia for many years.

His son, Reverend Samuel² Willard of Boston, Massachusetts, was Vice-President of Harvard College.

THE PARKS LINE

1. Richard¹ Parks, or Parke, born about 1602, in England; died in 1665 between 12 July and 19 October in Cambridge, Massachusetts; married, first, about 1627, Margery (?Crane?); born ———, 1595; death not found; married, second, ———, Sarah, the widow of Love Brewster. William and Jane Collier had a daughter Sarah Collier, born ———; married 15 May, 1634, Love Brewster, a son of Elder William Brewster, of the Mayflower; widow Sarah Parks was still alive in 1678, and living in Duxbury, Massachusetts; she probably died about 1699.

Richard¹ and Margery Parks had three children:

- 2 1. Isabel,² born about 1629; married about 1647–1648, Francis Whitmore; they had seven children.
- 3 + 2. Elizabeth,² born about 1631; married about 1651, Lieutenant Edward¹ Winship; see page 137, ante.
- 4 3. Thomas,² born about 1633, in England; married 1 December, 1653, Abigail Dix; they had nine children; he went to Newton, Massachusetts.

Richard¹ Parks is probably identical with the Richard Perk, a passenger 11 July, 1635, in the ship Defence of London, Edward Bostick, master, Richard then being aged 33 years, with his wife Margery, aged 40 years, and two daughters Isabel aged 7 years, and Elizabeth aged 4 years. His wife seems to have died early, and he married again. He was in Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1636. He was in 1642 a proprietor at the Farms, now Lexington, Massachusetts. He resided 18 years at Cambridge. The printed 1854 History of Newton, Massachusetts, page 382, by Francis Jackson, says: Richard Parks was a proprietor in 1636 in Cambridge. His house was near the Cow Common in Cambridge. In a division of lands in 1647, he had eleven acres in Cambridge Village, bounding west on Mr. Edward Jackson's land, and the highway to Dedham, Massachusetts, was laid out through it in 1648. The very ancient dwelling house upon this lot, which was pulled down about 1800, was supposed to have been built by him. It stood within a few feet of the spot now occupied by the Eliot Church. Previous to 1652, he owned a large tract of land in the north west part of the Village of Cambridge, bounded west by the Fuller farm, north by the Charles River, east by the Dummer farm, and south and east by the Mayhew farm, containing six hundred acres, which he probably bought of Pastor John Shepard or his heirs.

By the will of Richard¹ Parks, dated 12-5 mo. (July) 1665, and witnessed by Elder Thomas Wiswall and Hugh Mason, he bequeathed to his only son, Thomas Parks, all his houses and lands, after the decease of his wife Sarah Parks; by his inventory, dated 19-8 mo. (October), 1665, and taken by John Sherman and John Spring, the dwelling house and barn and out houses and six hundred acres of land adjoining, whereof twenty acres is broken up, it is appraised at 660 pounds; and 29 acres elsewhere is appraised at 100 pounds—the whole amount of the inventory was 972 pounds, a good estate. In 1663, he was released from training on account of his age. All his property, except the six hundred acres and buildings, was equally divided between the two daughters. Thirteen years after his decease, Thomas Parks, for 45 pounds and 15 shillings, bought the life estate of the widow, the release being dated 26 December, 1678; she was then living in Duxbury, Massachusetts, in the Colony of New Plymouth; she is described as the relict of Richard Parke, late of Cambridge Village, Massachusetts, seeming to indicate she was the mother-in-law of said Thomas Parks. Edward Parke, Senr., of London, England, is thought to have been the father of Richard¹ Parks.

So committing myself to your worships favor I rest your humble servant.

(Signed) THO. SWOETMAN."

Rem Jansen¹ Van Der Beeck emigrated from Ieveren or Jeveren, in Westphalia, Holland; by another account from Coevorden, in Drenthe, Netherlands; he was in New Amsterdam, 1643 to 1651; he was in Beverwyck, now Albany, New York, from 1655 to 1660, where he was nominated in 1655 for Commissaris, and where he sold his house and lot in 1660; to the "Waleboght," Brooklyn, New York, in 1643, in which place he owned several houses and lots. In 1663, he was complained of by Adriaen Hegeman for carrying off a plough-share, and was ordered by the court to replace it in the spot where he found it, and if he had any claim to prosecute it at law (see volume 6, page 5, Records of New Amsterdam.) Some authorities say his sons were called Rem's sons, hence the name. This explanation is not entirely satisfactory for the change of the name from Van Der Beeck to Remsen; and will not apply in similar instances. We find Hendrick Rycken was the ancestor of the Suydam Family; and Dirck Jansen Van Amsterdam was the ancestor of the Dey Family. One must look deeper for these changes in names. The printed 1905 Saint Nicholas Society Year Book, on page 255, has, Rem Janse Van Der Beeck, the founder of the Remsen Family, was descended from German and Dutch Ancestors. He came here in 1642. When his father-in-law purchased Wallabout, he brought his family down the Hudson River from Albany, and made his home in Brooklyn. He held various offices, and became a magistrate during the Dutch Administration. At his funeral fifteen of his children, with their wives, husbands, and children, were present. The printed 1852 History of Newtown, Long Island, New York, by James Riker, on page 385, gives the coat-of-arms, and says it was granted them in 1162 by Frederick Barbarossa, the Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire.

The son Jan² Remsen, made his will 2 May, 1696; proved at New York, 28 January, 1711.

See the printed 1902 Documentary History of Oyster Bay, by Henry A. Stoutenburgh, page 460; also the printed 1881 Early Settlers of Kings County, Long Island, New York, by Teunis G. Bergen, page 239.

From a map on file in the office of the Secretary of State at Albany, New York, filed 8 August, 1681, of six farms in Flatbush, it appears that "Pieter Lott" owned a farm on the West side of the "highway to the ferry" South of Domine Johannes Theodorus Polhemius's double lot and North of that of "Klyn Dirk" (Dirk Janse Hoogland), "broad before 26 Rods 8 foot" (about 311 and two tenth feet English measure) "after 27 Rod" (about 325 and eight tenth feet English), "long 600 Rod" (about 7241 feet English). This is clearly the lot which Edward Griffen conveyed to "Bartel Lot and Pieter Loot," known as Number 9, next to the pastor (Domine Polhemius's) land, containing 24 morgens, on the 28 July, 1653; Griffen purchased from Garret Stryker. The printed 1846-1847 History of Orange County, New York, 653 pages, by Samuel W—— Eager, has on page 158: Daniel Niven, Esq.,— This gentleman, though not a resident of the village (of Newburgh), was yet so near to it as to entitle him to a short notice. He emigrated from Ila, an island on the west coast of Scotland, and came to the City of New York about the year 1770. Patriotic in all his associations and a true lover of human freedom, early in the war, with other patriots, he volunteered his services to his adopted country, and was actively engaged in various duties in and about the City of New York, and in New Jersey. Becoming acquainted with Washington, who soon saw the stern and determined character of the young and active Scotchman, he received a commission as Lieutenant of Engineers in the regular army, and was much employed at West Point and other places along the river. We are informed he was instrumental with others in drawing the plan of Fort Putnam at the time of its erection; superintended the floating of the great chain across the river, more particularly mentioned hereafter—and was at the Point at the time of Arnold's treasonable attempt to surrender that post. A more particular description of his Revolutionary services is hostile to our plan, and we leave them with the remark—that on every occasion he rigidly executed his duty and was equal to the trust confided in him. After the war he came to Newburgh, and purchased the farm with milling privileges and erections from Mr. —— Belknap—about two miles west of the village where he lived and died. This gentleman (Daniel Niven) was a side Judge of the Common Pleas and held the commission of a Justice of the Peace for many years.

It was said of him that when a suitor came and asked process, he made it a part of his official duty to learn the exact state of the case and if there were merits in the application, his business was to effect a settlement of the matter without a suit. If the parties, however, in despite of his kind offices, would still appeal to the law, he meted them the most rigid justice. This friendly and fatherly course of proceeding gained him the good will and confidence of his neighbors and no one was more frequently chosen as referee or arbitrator to settle disputes, than he. When he sat in his official capacity, order and decorum were exacted, and counsel were expected to demean themselves respectfully towards the Court under the pains of commitment.

Personal friendship never relaxed the rigor of the rule, observant himself of order and respect, he enforced them upon others. It was difficult to change his opinions when once fairly formed, and nothing but the clearest evidence or most forcible reasoning could do it; but when satisfied of error, he would yield to the force of truth—little laxity could grow up or thrive in personal or public affairs, where he had influence or power to check it. The rule with him in jurisprudence and morals was the same, an observance of the Law, and the whole Law. An illustration of this feature in his character may be gathered from an anecdote or two, which I recollect hearing when a boy. Morgan Lewis, afterwards Governor of the State (of New York), had been holding a circuit court at Goshen which closed its session on a Saturday night—and he was under the necessity of returning home, or hastening to another circuit, he had to travel on the Sabbath which was contrary to the statute laws of the State. Phineas Bowman, Esq., who then resided at Newburgh, was with the Judge—a man full of fun, frolic and the d—l as ever dwelt in the county; under some pretence, while nearing the house of the Justice, left him and rode on before. He hastened to find Mr. Niven, and informed him that the Judge was coming in full breach of the Sabbath, and that he must stop and fine him. Bowman in the meantime, complained of himself, made his excuse therefore, and paid his fine. By this time the Judge was near the house and the Justice went out; met him in the road, arrested him in his progress, informed him of his offence, and he must pay the fine or be detained. The Judge stated his case to be one of necessity, justified his conduct, and refused to pay; this was not a sufficient excuse for the Justice; escape was impossible without disgrace, and the Judge, to save himself from capture and detention till the next day, paid his fine and was permitted to proceed. This however was not the end of it; for the dignity of the Judge was violated, the State insulted in his person, and he proceeded homeward, breathing vengeance in place of submitting to authority like a good citizen. If we are rightly informed, the Judge instituted a suit, to recover the penalty on the ground that it was illegally exacted; but he failed in his attempt, and the Justice again triumphed over the Judge. At a subsequent period, he also fined General James Clinton for a like violation of the Sabbath—who equally dissatisfied with the Judge that the penalty was illegally exacted, brought a certiorari to the common pleas to reverse the Justice's proceedings, and to teach him a lesson, that laws of a mere moral character, were not to be enforced against the respectable and honorable in society. In this instance the humble Justice triumphed over the aged warrior as easily as over the subtle jurist in the former case, and the General was taught the lesson that all men in this community were alike in the all seeing eye of the Law. This was not a mere show of authority, on the part of Mr. Niven, or played off by him on the parties for popular effect, and no one who knew the man—his temper and character, would for a moment suspect it. On his part, it was a conscientious fulfillment of the law he had sworn to execute—he was known to fine his own son, with other boys for a like violation of the Sabbath. The times have changed so—somewhat in these matters, and men have changed with them; but whether for the better, the patriot jurist and moralist must determine for themselves. Mr. Niven had been educated in and to the observance of a strict moral creed and as an officer endeavored to carry out his principles into wholesome and rigorous exercise, fully persuaded that it was for the public good. We are of opinion that the conduct of such men are most benign, wholesome and influential upon the public mind, and contribute to stay the downward course of vice and immorality, as obstructions in a stream impede and control its waters. We conclude this imperfect note by adding thereto the inscription found on his tombstone, written by Doctor John M—— Mason, who was well acquainted with the subject of remark, which will give the reader a more perfect idea of this individual than anything we could write—"Under this stone reposes in hope the flesh of Daniel Niven Esq., Strong sense unaided by early cultivation, but united with tried integrity, recommended him to respect and confidence. Devoted with unostentatious zeal to the best interests of society. He approved himself as a private Christian, unassum-ing and exemplary. As a soldier in the Armies of his Country, alert and gallant. As a civil magistrate, a terror to evil doers, enforcing wholesome laws, without fear, favor or affection. As an officer in the Church of God, disinterested, vigilant, public spirited, faithful. And having passed through an active and varied life, honored by the esteem of the good and the fears of bad men, He finished his course in the consolations of that Gospel which he had loved, November 20, 1809, aged 67 years.

is one plainly legible, as follows:

The first settlement, at the place which developed into the Ryck's Patent, was Roe-ya-hook, and the Indian village was on the land, near and now occupied as a military parade ground, known as the New York "State Camp." It was there the white man first placed his feet and on that ground the settlement began and in perfect peace with the Indians. By the help of the Indians, they began to build themselves houses, and were always careful to deal justly, truthfully and honestly with the Indians, giving them an equivalent for their services rendered.

The Dutch soon learned the Indian language and the settlement increased. The Indians proposed to sell the Dutch a tract of land especially for the use of the settlement, and July 10, 1641, a council was held and the chiefs of other clans united and an agreement was made and the boundary of the land designated. It lay east of Annsville Creek, taking the land east and south of where Peekskill is located. In April, 1643, the Dutch paid for their land in goods, as follows: 8 guns, 9 blankets, 5 coats, 14 fathoms of daffel cloth, 14 kettles, 2 anchors of rum, 5 half vats of strong beer, 6 earthen jugs, 12 shirts, 50 pounds of powder, 30 bars of lead, 18 hatchets, 18 hoes, 14 knives, one small coat, 6 fathoms of strong water cloth, 6 pairs of stockings and 6 tobacco boxes. For the above the Indians sold them seven thousand two hundred acres of land, and on this land the Dutch lived in peace and harmony with the Indians.

In after years the title to this land was made good to the settlement by the government of England, giving a charter grant and patent which was called Ryck's Patent, (Richard Patent in Dutch), so called after Richard Abrahamson, the principal patentee, who later assumed the English name of "Lent."

Substantially the tract passed to Hercules Lent, Richard's son, about 1730. Three hundred acres of this land fronting on the inner and upper part of Peekskill Bay, New York, was deeded to Jacobus De Kay, April 25th, for the value of 400 guilders, which ultimately became the property of John Kronkhyte, the ancestor of the Cronkhites.

Ryck's Patent remained a separate political division for representation in the Assembly until divided by the New York State Act of 1788.

After many years there came a time for a division of this land, and Hercules Lent (Number 110 in the Lent Genealogy) purchased eighteen hundred acres of this land, paying 150 pounds ($750), on which this branch of the Lent Family have lived from the first settlement down to the present time, dividing and dividing until what was left in the Cronkhite-Depew Family was given by Mr. Chauncey Mitchell Depew to the village of Peekskill, New York, for a public Park.

Chauncey M. Depew

Ninety Years Old 1923

WITH the accumulated wisdom of nine decades, the veteran New York Central Railroad man, philosopher and raconteur extraordinary, sat in his office yesterday on his ninetieth birthday and said: "I never felt better in my life." Reminiscently he said: "Do you know I never saw a man who was ninety years old until after I was sixty except one, Peter Cooper."

Mr. Depew predicted the nomination of President Coolidge on the first ballot at Cleveland and his election by a large majority.
